FOR STATE TREASURER,

MATTHEW S. QUAY.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

PERHAPS England or Russia will buy the Dolphin.

MINISTER COX traveled in a royal car from London to Constantinople.

GEN. PHIL SHERIDAN has gone to Indian Territory to fight the Indians.

PERHAPS our Democratic friends won't hold any State convention this year.

JUDGE LAMBERT TREE, the new American minister to Belgium, is worth $5,000,000.

TIMES are indeed "hard." The other day a plumber hanged himself because he had no money.

THE cholera now raging in Spain is said to be 50 per cent. more fatal among women than among men.

"KEILEY or nobody!" says the Administration to Austria. This isn't a fair deal. It is nobody either way.

THE New York Tribune seems to believe that the great American Keiley has wandered away and is lost.

THE reorganization of the navy is to be the next scheme. Since there isn't very much of it left to reorganize, we haven't lost any sleep over it yet.

AMERICAN enterprise means a great deal. The recent sinking of a shaft one-half mile deep to reach a vein of copper in Michigan is certainly something to be proud of.

JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG has resigned the Chniese mission at $12,500 per annum to secure a position on a newspaper at a higher salary. John is evidently Young in the newspaper business.

WE doubt if, with all the boasted freedom of this country, any newspaper here would dare do what the Pall Mall Gazette is now doing in London. The same circumstances, however, prevail here.

WHY not send Malcolm Hay on a foreign mission where his health might be recuperated? That would be better than to search all through the South for ex-Rebels to fill such appointments.

THE Philadelphia Press was very timely on the 10th of July in reminding the people that "a few ashes sprinkled upon the icy sidewalks are appreciated by pedestrians in these gruesome days."

EL MAHDI is reported dead again. As this is only the third or fourth time that the telegraph has killed him, he may be expected to survive at least four more such reports. A False Prophet ought to have at least as many lives as a cat.

GEN. GRANT is spared to see another "Fourth," but there seems to be no room for doubt that when another year shall have added to our National existence the "old Commander" will have joined the ranks of that innumerable host that musters on the other shore.

MISS EDITH FISH, daughter of ex-Secretary Fish, who married Mr. H. O. Northcote a few years ago, becomes another of the brilliant galaxy of titled American ladies at the English Court. The elevation of her father-in-law, Sir Stafford Northcote, to the peerage, gives her the prefix of "Honorable," the courtesy privilege of the wives of younger sons of peers below the rank of Earl. If, however, Sir Stafford receives an earldom, as it is rumored he will, Secretary Fish's daughter will become Lady Henry Northcote.

Vanderbilt in Pennsylvania.

That remarkably vast and well-managed corporation, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, seems to be making steady advances in the attainment of wealth and influence. It has long been the greatest organization in the world, next to a State or Nation, and recent developments seem to indicate that it is still as full of life and growth as ever. Mr. Vanderbilt, of New York, whose operations in this State a year ago, promised a competing line fully as strong, seems now to be retreating as fast as possible from the further development of his enterprises and the Pennsylvania is taking possession of his lines. The Philadelphia Press calls attention to the fact that Mr. Vanderbilt said a year ago that he would put $25,000,000 in Pennsylvania. He has probably expended half the sum, says the Press, in building the Beech Creek Railroad, in the projection of the South Pennsylvania and in bad investments in Reading. The original scheme was vast in its conception. It included the tapping of the rich bituminous coal region in the central part of the State, the control of one-third of the anthracite coal fields and the building of a new trunk line. From a business point of view the first project has been successful and the two latter were failures. The new road into the Clearfield region is well located, has easy grades and will, no doubt, become a paying property. In order to get a foothold in the anthracite region Mr. Vanderbilt found it necessary to invest in Reading and Jersey Central. He purchased large quantities of the former stock from 20 to 37, and was gradually led into heavy investments to protect his early purchases. In the language of the street, he has never seen daylight in Reading since he began buying in 1881. A year ago he was compelled to quietly sell the 50,000 Jersey Central shares, through which Reading controlled the property, in order to save a large loan he had made on them. Since that time things have gone on from bad to worse, and Mr. Vanderbilt has undoubtedly been led, through his losses in Reading, to think of abandoning his other enterprises.

The South Pennsylvania scheme has never been brought to a point where it could be considered a success. It originated as a part of the plan to give Reading importance by making it a link in a new trunk line project. Much money has been spent on the line itself, and Mr. Vanderbilt bought a controlling interest in the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Road to give the new line a connection with the Lake Shore and the Vanderbilt system of roads. The sharp competition between all the great roads of the country, together with Mr. Vanderbilt's failure in Reading, seems to have completely discouraged him, and it is believed he is now ready to sell out to the Pennsylvania Railroad at a loss. If this should be accomplished it will entirely change the whole aspect of railroad affairs in the State. Instead of the war of rates which follows the building of competitive roads, we shall have all these important lines under the control of the Pennsylvania, and, if that road should get possession of the Reading, it would for the first time in its history become a great anthracite carrier. In any event, it is not likely that new railroads will be projected in this State for some years. The latest combination was thought to be invincible, with Mr. Vanderbilt's wealth and Mr. Gowen's shrewdness behind it, but it has fallen of its own weight.

The Pennsylvania is master of a great property. It has not been aggressive, it has pursued its own evenly, it has maintained rates when every other road was cutting, it has lived up to its contracts in the turn-line pools. Its stock has seldom been below par, it has steadily earned 6 per cent dividends, while it has kept up its road bed and equipment to such a degree of excellence as to make them the standard for the world.

Sentiment in Song.

Much of the moral progress of the world is due to sentiment in songs. Fancy is not all, nor always, fiction. The poet is a painter showing the colors of real life--the poet is a musician playing upon the deepest and most hidden chords of feeling in the human heart--the poet is a prophet revealing some cause of promise in answer to the aspirations of the dullest souls.

The world attributes the gifts of poetic expression to genius. If it be so it is the genius of the divinity in man. Some one has said "Let me write the ballads of a nation, and I care not who writes the sermons.' The most heroic virtue, the most sacrificing as well as enthusiastic patriotism, and the martqo-spirit of religious devotion, have been born and strengthened by the melody of verse. The voice of song has been as the rushing of mighty waters, or as an irrepressible tempest in the reforms of the world, In the poetry of the Bible is to be found its grandest sublimity.

The truths of the universe are attuned to harmony, and poetry and song are their most natural expression. The splendors of the heavens, and the glories of the earth in all its varied phenomena and scenes, have been the inspiring themes of poets among all peoples and in all ages. One simple little hymn, sung by Sankey, has a more potent influence for good, upon an audience, than could be effected by the most learned dissertation upon theological points of doctrine.

It is not, however, in the religious world alone wherein great conversions are made through the sentiment in songs. Tyranny has been made to tremble, governments overthrown, revolutions instigated, and millions of slaves set free, because the sweet singers in every Israel of righteousness have voiced God and humanity in their songs. The low and mean things that make wrong and promote evil in the world are not fit subjects of song. It is the grand, the true, the heroic, the patient, trustful, suffering, loving, and all that means reform, progress, and which call for the possibilities of human endeavor and attainment, —it is these which inspire the true poet and make his mission a blessing to mankind.

We frequently find a beautiful poem, without the name of its author, seemingly gone astray, afloat upon the face of our current literature as some precious flower upon a stream, and we wonder what hand penned the words, and what coals of experience kindled the heart fire of its inspiration. The following exquisite lines we have picked out from our collection of such no-name gems:

"Life hath its barren years,
When blossoms fall untimely down,
When ripened fruitage fails to crown
The summer toil, when nature's frown
Looks only on our tears.

Life hath its faithless days.
The golden promise of the morn,
That seemed for light and gladness born,
Meant only noontide wreck and scorn,
Hushed harp instead of praise.

Life hath its valleys, too,
Where we must walk with vain regret,
With mourning clothed, with wild rain wet,
Toward sunlight hopes that soon must set,
All quenched in pitying dew.

Life hath its harvest moons,
Its tasseled corn and purple-weighted vine:
Its gathered sheaves of grain, the blessed sign
Of plenteous ripening bread and pure rich wine,
Full hearts for harvest tunes.

Life hath its hopes fulfilled;
Its glad fruition, its best answered prayer,
Sweeter for waiting long, whose holy air,
Indrawn to silent souls, breathes forth its rare,
Grand speech by joy distilled."

These life-pictures are realities which the silent years bring to all sensitive souls. H. T.

THE Western Union Telegraph Company has opened and closed its ponderous jaws once more, and this time the American Rapid Company has turned up between its teeth. It's the same old story. The big fish swallow the little ones.

THE Chamber of Deputies of France has voted $800,000 to be expended in maintaining and educating every 7th child born in poor French families. This is to increase the population of the country.

The Republican Platform.

We invite the attention of our readers and of all good citizens to the admirable platform promulgated by the Republican State Convention which met in Harrisburg on Wednesday, July 8. The Republican party has no reason to be cast down, for it stands on the eternal principles of truth and justice taught by the founders of this government, who have themselves passed away, but whose teachings will outlast time. The party which calls itself Democratic has forsaken all good principles, and has erected for itself a false structure of fictitious issues, which when it falls again will never rise.

The platform declares as much as this and proclaims that the party is in favor of the repeal of internal revenue taxes except upon spirituous and malt liquors and points out a safe and profitable way for the collection of all necessary revenues.

Let us repeat some of the orthodox doctrines of Republicanism which the platform contains. In doing this, we only desire to emphasize those truths and call attention to this declaration of them—

Protection to American industry, and especially such as will effectually stop the importation of foreign contract labor.

No civil service reform such as deprives an honest man giving expression to his real political convictions. We do not admire such civil service reform as would lead to the appointment of a notoriously immoral person merely because he is not a prominent politician. That would, of course, be most degenerating in its tendencies upon ambitious American youth, but it is just what the ridiculous civil service reform is now influencing the appointing power to do.

Sound money and maintenance of public credit have ever been cardinal doctrines of the party, and it is the party to which the country owes the excellence of its financial system and high credit among all nations.

In regard to State affairs, the platform calls the attention of the people to that policy which has already made Democracy so unpopular in Pennsylvania—

The shameless abuse of the veto power.

The refusal to permit the Legislature to perform its constitutional duty in reapportionment.

The wise action of the Repuplican majority in the late legislature in passing laws which encourage the investment of capital and labor.

The platform is all that you can require. The Rebuplican standard-bearer this year is Mathew Stanley Quay, a wise and intelligent gentleman. Vote for your own interest in voting for him.

AT this season of the year we need not want for cholera to come to us from Europe. We can breed the disease here at home. According to a well posted writer, it is a well-know fact that with a general favorable condition of the atmosphere, and favorable conditions are always found in filth, and decaying animal and vegetable matter, that cholera does not require any importation from foreign countries where it is raging to make it prevalent and fatal. In 1854 its first appearance in the United States was in Chicago. In 1873, while eastern cities were healthful it dropped down in sporadic cases at Cincinnati. The way to quarantine against cholera is to remove all the local causes in which the disease can find a habitation, drink pure water and eat wholesome food. It is an epidemic and not a contagious disease. It is not dependent upon personal contact with persons infected with the disease, but upon the emanations from the sources mentioned. An open sink in the kitchen, a foul closet, a cellar with decaying vegetables, bad sewage connections, are all in the class of agents for the dread scourge to find a foothold. Wise people will take note of such facts, and by precautions easily taken, and by small expense for disinfectants, will invite health instead of pestilence and death into their homes.—Exchange.

In the Interest of Labor.

In examining the Republican State platform as already published in this paper, we notice that the following strong labor plank was omitted. We therefore publish it separately and commend it heartily:

Third—The Republican party, recognizing labor as the basis on which the principle of our Government is founded, believes the labor masses should receive the fullest consideration in measures for their education, advancement and protection. It has already through its Legislative majority, enacted laws furthering the industries of the State, the interests of its mining population, protecting honest labor against the unwarranted competition of convict contract labor, removing taxes from manufacturing corporations, thereby giving promise of remunerative employment to many suffering from the prevailing depression, legalizing co-operation, productive and distributive, providing for free education in industrial art, as well as others tending to the general good of those who toil.

We condemn all contracts for the importation of foreign labor as tending to reduce to starvation the wages of the laboring men of Pennsylvania, and demand that the existing laws against this will be strictly enforced.

THERE is a real live Hebrew lord in the House of Peers in England. He is Lord Rothschild and he took the peerage oath on Thursday last. It is considered a circumstance of vast importance throughout the world, as it is evidence that this really and honorably "peculiar" people are making their presence, intelligence and influence felt in spite of adverse circumstances.

GEN. W. W. H. DAVIS, of Doylestown, who succeeded Col. A. Wilson Norris as pension agent for the Philadelphia district, has turned a Union soldier out of a clerkship and given it to Joseph Barbiere, a native of Tennessee, but now a resident of this State. Among Joseph Barbiere's especial qualifications for the office is that he is the author of a book which is "filled with the most venomous abuse of the North, of Northern public men, Northern visitors and Abolitionists that never appeared, perhaps, from a Southern source." He calls Lincoln and Wendell Philips all the mean names in catalogue and praises Jeff Davis to the skies. There are hundreds of similar changes taking place daily and it shows the spirit of the administration. The greater rebel a man has been to his country the better are his chances for getting an office, while Democrats who were loyal are passed unnoticed.

THE recent course of the Philadelphia Press wins our admiration. It is a perfect example of fairness in politics and to an unusal degree has the courage of its convictions. If the party was entirely composed of such correct exponents of Republican principles its triumph as often as an election occurs would never be a subject of doubt. The only real error which we have known the Press to make in recent years was in giving our own distinguished townsman, Gen. Jas. A. Beaver, only a partial support, and that, we believe, was an error of the head and not of the heart. This year, we have confidence to believe, it will not waver in support of the Republican candidate. We consider it the greatest paper in Pennsylvania.

IF the votes cast for the respective candidates for Governor in Ohio correspond in number to the places the first letter of each candidate's name occupies in the alphabet, the Republican candidate will come out first best. There's Foraker, Hoadly and Leonard, d'you see?

Poetry.

WHAT THE MOTHER SAYS.

Yes, I know there are stains on my carpet.
The traces of small muddy boots;
And I see your fair tapestry glowing,
And spotless with blossoms and fruits.

And I know that my walls are disfigured
With prints of small fingers and hands;
And that your own household most truly
In immaculate purity stands.

And I know that my parlor is littered
With many old treasures and toys;
While your own is in daintiest order,
Unharmed by the presence of boys.

And I know that my room is invaded
Quite boldly all hours of the day;
While you sit in your room unmolested,
And dream the soft quiet away.

Yes, I know there are four little bedsides,
Where I mu t stand watchful each night;
While you go out in your carriage,
And flash in your dresses so bright.

Now, I think I'm a neat little woman;
I like my house orderly, too;
And I'm fond of all dainty belongings;
Yet I would not change places with you.

No! keep your fair home with its order,
Its freedom from bother and noise;
And keep your own fanciful leisure,
But give me my four splendid boys.

MY HUSBAND.

My husband's kind and good and true,
And tall and well, and handsome, too,
He loves me dearly—that I know,
Without his always saying so.

He treats me as a sweetheart yet,
Although it's years since first we met.
O, to be petted and caressed
By such a man is to be be blest.

I love him more than he loves me
If such a happy thing can be,
And feel as joyful as a bride
Domesticated by his side

And yet, in sorrow or in bliss,
But once, just once I've felt his kiss—
That was enough, because, a lack, O,
My precious husband chews tobacco.

H. C. DODGE.

MIDSUMMER.

O to lie in the ripening grass
That gracefully bends to the winds that pass,
And to look aloft the oak leaves through
Into the sky so deep, so blue!

O to feel as utterly free
As the rice-bird singing above on the tree,
Or the locusts piping their droway whirr,
Or the down that sails from the thistle-burr!

O to float like the cloudy drifts,
Changing hue as the sunlight shifts,
Or hastening gaily into the West
To follow the blushing sun to rest!

O for the secret of nature's power
To drain the joy of the present hour!
O to work and glow in the sun!
O to sleep when the day is done!

PAUL HERMES.

Old Abe's Boyhood.

The following interview, held in Paris, Ill., about two weeks since with Dennis F. Hanks, by Rev. Robert McIntyre, of Charleston, regarding the early life of President Abraham Lincoln, and which appeared in the Charleston Courier, will be of great interest. Uncle Dennis, as he is familiarly known, makes his home in Paris with his daughter, Mrs. James Shoaff:

"I found him hale and erect, ready to recount for the benefit of a younger generation, the incident, which marked the youth of the martyred president. His name is Dennis Hanks, and he is a cousin of Lincoln. Uncle Dennis, as he is called, is a typical Kentuckian, born in Hardin county, 1799. His face is sun-bronzed and plowed with furrows of time; a resolute mouth, with firm grip of the jaws, broad forehead above a pair of unwearable eyes. The eyes seem out of place in the weary, faded face; they glow and flash like two diamond sparks set in ridges of dull gold. The face is a serious one, but the play of light in the eyes, unquenchable by time, betray the nature full of sunshine, and elate life. A side-wise glance at the profile shows a face strikingly Lincoln-like, prominent cheek bones, temple, nose and chin; but, best of all, that twinkling drollery in the eye that flashed in the White House during the dark days of the civil war. To our query he replied cherily:

"Certainly, certainly, sir, I'll talk to you about Abe. I kin talk, too, bein' as I'm the only livin' man that knows all about him."

"How old was Mr. Lincoln when you first met him?"

"About twenty-four hours—hardly that. I rikkilect I run all the way, over two miles, to see Nancy Hanks' boy baby. 'Twos common then for connextion to gether in them days to see new babies. Her name was Nancy Hanks before she married Thomas Lincoln. I held the wee one a minnit. I was ten years old, and it tickled me to hold the pulpy, red little Lincoln."

"When did you move to Indiana?"

"When Abe was about nine. Mr. Lincoln moved first, and built a camp of brush in Spencer county. We came out a year later, and he then had a cabin up and gave us the shanty. On this spot Abe grew to manhood."

"How far apart were your cabins?"

"About fifteen rods. Abe killed a turkey the day we got there and couldn't git thro' tellin' about it. The name was pronounced Linkhorn by the folks then. We was all uneducated. After a spell we learned better."

"In the 'Life of Lincoln,' published after his nomination, it is stated that you taught him to read."

"Yes, sir, I did. I taught him to spell, read and cipher. He knew his letters pretty wellish; but no more. His mother taught him his letters. If ever there was a good woman on earth, she was one, a true Christian of the Baptist church; but she died soon after we arrived, and left him without a teacher; his father couldn't read a word."

"Is it possible he had no schooling?"

"Only about one quarter, scarcely that. I then set in to help him; I didn't know much, but I did the best I could."

"What books did he read first?"

"Webster's speller. When I got him through that, I only had a copy of Indiana statutes. Then he got hold of a book; I can't rekkellect the name; maybe you kin if I tell you something et was in it. It told a yarn about a feller, a nigger or suthin', that sailed a flatboat up to a rock, and the rock was magnetized and drawed the nails out of his boat, and he got a duckin', or suthin', I forget now."

"That is the story of Sinbad in the Arabian Nights."

"That's it, that's the book. Abe would lay on the floor with a chair under his head and laugh over them 'Rabian Nights by the hour. I told him it was likely lies from end to end, but be learned to read right well in it."

"Had he any other books?"

"Yes; I borrowed for him the 'Life of Washington' and the 'Speeches of Henry Clay.' They had a powerful influence on him. He told me afterwards, in the White House, he wanted to live like Washington. He was a Democrat, like his father and all of us, when he began to read it. When he closed it he was a Whig, heart and soul, and he went step by step until he became leader of the Republicans."

"Will you describe him when a boy?"

"Well, he was at that time not grown, only six feet and two inches high. He was six feet four and a half when grown—tall, lathy and gangling—not much appearance, not handsome, not ugly, but peculiar. This kind of a fellow: If a man rode up horseback, Abe would be the first one out, up on the fence and asking questions, till his father would give him a knock side o' the head; then he'd go throw at snowbirds or suthin', but pondering all the while.

"Was he active and strong?"

"He was that. I was ten years older but I couldn't rassle him down. His legs was too long for me to throw him. He would fling one foot upon my shoulder and make me swing corners swift, and his arms so long and strong! My! how he would chop! His axe would flash and bite into a sugar tree or sycamore, and down it would come. If you heard him fallin' trees in a clearin' you would say there were three men at work by the way trees fell. But he never was sassy or quarrelsome. I have seen him walk into a crowd of sawin' rowdies and tell some droll yarn and bust them all up. It was the same when he was a lawyer; all eyes, when he riz, were on him; there was suthin' peculiarsome about him."

"What did you teach him to write with?"

"Somehais he would write with a piece of mertcoal or the point of a burnt stick on the fence or floor. We got a little paper at the county town and I make ink out of blackberry briar root and a little copperas; it would eat the paper after awhile. I made his first pen out of a turkey buzzard feather, them's good for pens. We had no geese them days. After he learned to write he was scrawlin' his name everywhere; sometimes he would write it on the white sand down by the creek bank, and leave it there till the fresh would blot it out."

"Did you have any idea of his future greatness?"

"No; it was a new country, and he was a raw boy; rather a bright and likely lad, but the big world seemed far ahead of him. We were all slow goin' folks, but he had it in him, though we never suspected it."

"Did he take to books eagerly?"

"No; we had to hire him at first. But when he got a taste it was the old story—we had to pull the sow's ears to get her to the trough, and pull her tail to get her away. He read a great deal and had a wonderful memory—wonderful. Never forgot anything."

"What church did Abe attend?"

"The Baptist. I'll tell you a circumstance about him. He would come home from church and put a box in the middle of the cabin floor, and repeat the sermint from text to doxology.

I've heard him do it often."

"Was he a religious man?"

"Well, he wasn't in early life a religious man. He was a moral man, strictly—never went to frolics, never drank liquor, never used tobacco, never swore. But in after life he became more religious, but the Bible puzzled him, especially the miracles. He often asked me in the timber, or sittin' around the fireplace nights, to explain Scripture. He never joined any church or any secret order."

"Did you move with him to Illinois?"

"Yes; I bought a little improvement near him, six miles from Decatur. Here the famous rails were split that were carried around in the campaign. They were called his rails; but nobody can tell about that. I split some of 'em, and we had a rail frolic, and folks came and helped us split. He was a master hand maulm' rails. I heard him say in a speech one day about these rails, 'If I didn't make these, I made many just as good.' Then the crowd yelled."

"Were you his crony and companion?"

"Yes, I was the only boy in the place, all them years, and we were always together."

"Did you ever visit him in Washington?"

"Certainly. There were some folks arrested in Charleston, and I, for their folks' sake, went on durin' the war to get 'em free, for it was best. I got there and found the white house surrounded with soldiers. I went up to the door to get in, and a reporter (means reporter) stopped me and said: 'Who do you want to see?' I said: 'Mr. Lincoln.' He said: 'You can't see him; it ain't the time of day yet.' I said: 'I'll show you if I can't. I Lain't come here from Illinois for nothin'.' He grinned and showed me the door of his office. Outside was a heap of fellers waitin' to git to see the president. I opened the door kinder soft, and at the other end of a big room sat Abe at an old desk worth about six bits. 'Hey?' I hollered, 'you're a pretty president, ain't you?' He looked up and said, 'Well, Dennis, is that you?' and made a run and just gethered me. When I could get able to talk, I said: 'I don't want no office, Abe.' He said most of 'em do, Dennis, and smiled kinder tired. I told my errand, and he said to come up next morning and he would fix it. We talked an hour as friendly as ever about long gone times, then he told me to go down to the house and see Mary, that's his wife. She's dead now, poor soul. I knew they were too highfalution down to Mary's for me, so I went to the tavern and put up. Next morning I went up, and Abe had an armload of indictments, and he said: 'Take these over to Stanton and he will fix it.' I said, 'Abe I don't know where the plagueoned place is.' So he called a reporter standing by and said: 'Take these to Mr. Stanton.' Pretty soon Mr. Stanton in a bob-tail coat came in. He didn't want to let 'em go, but Abe made him sign them. When Stanton went out I said: 'Abe, if I was as big as you are, I'd take Stanton over my knee and spank him.' He laughed and said, 'it is not easy to keep my cabinet all in good humor.' I left an' came home an' never saw him again. The next spring he was killed."

"When did you hear of his death?"

"The day after he was shot. I could not believe it. I went about saying surely it isn't so. I mind it all like it was yesterday. Twenty years did you say? Twenty years? It all comes back so plain to-day."

Colonel M. S. Quay,

SKETCH OF THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR THE CAMPAIGN OF 1885.

The Republican candidate for State Treasurer, Colonel Matthew Stanley Quay, is of Scotch-Irish descent, and was born in Dillsburg, York county, Pa. His father was a distinguished Presbyterian minister, who removed with his family, in 1840, to Beaver county, where a few years later Matthew S. graduated at Jefferson College with distinction, though but 17 years of age. He came to Pittsburg, and began the study of law in the office of Penny & Sterrett, the latter now a member of the Supreme bench. Before he had completed his studies he traveled in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, where he taught school, lectured, afterward completing his legal studies at Beaver. In 1854 he was admitted to the bar. In 1855 appointed prothonotary of the county, a place which he filled so well that he was re-elected in 1856 and 1859. He resigned this position to accept a lieutenancy in the Pennsylvania Reserves, then organizing for service. While his regiment was awaiting at Camp Wright the call to the front, he was summoned to Harrisburg, and made Assistant Commissary General of the State with rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

He was afterward private secretary to Governor Curtin, and in 1862 was selected to command the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Pennsylvania Volunteers, nine months' service, and continued in command until asked to serve as State agent at Washington. He won distinction at the battle of Fredericksburg. He was subsequently Military Secretary of the State, member of the Legislature, Secretary of the Republican State Committee and Secretary of the Commonwealth. During the busiest period of his official life he was editor of the Beaver Radical. Colonel Quay is a man of extensive acquaintance and a scholar of known ability.

Hornets and Honey Bees Fighting.

Gossipy Farmer, in The Baltimore Herald

The most remarkable and exciting scene I ever witnessed was a fight between a swarm of bees and a colony of hornets. Hornets, as you may know, build their nests out of a material not unlike paper, which is moulded into concentric layers. The nests often attain the size of a man's head, and are occupied by about 200 hornets. One day a swarm of bees took a flight from a bee-hive of my father's, and made its way through a peach orchard for a piece of underbrush about 200 yards from the hive. We pursued with tin pans, and brought the fleeing bees to a stop. They alighted on an apparently deserted nest of hornets. It took about two seconds for the 200 hornets to come out of their den and attack the invaders. The battle was hot and furious. The air was filled with a prolonged buzz as the combatants flew at each other and tried to use their stings. A great many on each side were killed, but the hornets carried the day. After the queen had been killed her army was put to rout.

Don't Want to Waste Time.

"My dear friend," said a minister at the bedside of a sick man, "do you feel that you are prepared to die?"

"I realize only two well that I am not," replied the sick man, feebly.

"I would be glad to speak with you concerning matters which at this time must concern—"

"You are very kind, sir," interrupted the patient, "but the physicians are holding a consultation, and I would like to learn their verdict first."

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Resolutions Adopted by the Republican State Convention.

The Republicans of Pennsylvania, in convention assembled, reaffirm their unfaltering faith in the cardinal principles of the Republican party, and will adhere to them as long as the contest between right and wrong continues. Beaten, but not cast down, in the late Presidential election, and advancing confidently to another struggle, they declare:

First, The Republican party of Pennsylvania proclaims its advocacy of the repeal of the internal revenue taxes, except upon spirituous and malt liquors. The revenues necessary for a liberal support of the Government and the payment of the principal and interest of the public debt should be raised by an additional levy upon imports; and with a view to lift business from its present and guard it against future depression, we insist not only upon full protection to all home industries, but upon a prompt revival of our commercial marine and promotion of foreign commerce by a proper discount of duties upon goods imported in American bottoms and proper bounties to goods exported in American bottoms.

Second, the live issues of the present campaign are: Protection to American industry, not only through adequate Tariff laws, but such as will effectually stop the importation of foreign contract labor.

The establishment of a true system of civil service, one which will give competent officers and not bind either the political thoughts or actions of American citizens—one which will give a fixed tenure of office and no removal during the term except for adequate public cause.

The necessity for the enforcement of the right of every voter within our National boundaries to freely cast his ballot and have the same fairly counted at all elections, and to give to each and every man, in whatsoever section of the land he may dwell, that equal and adequate protection before the law to which he is justly entitled.

The preservation of a sound financial system, the maintenance of a currency worth one hundred cents on the dollar at all times and redeemable in coin.

The protection of the National Treasury from unwarranted and especially from disloyal claims.

The maintenance of the credit of our Government as established by Republican administrations.

A just regard for our commercial relations with foreign nations, and a closer intercourse with those on the American continent.

To provide resolutely for the protection of American National and industrial independence.

To maintain the standard of social condition, which, in contrast to the circumstances of other countries, American labor has thus far enjoyed.

To continue the contest with undiminished courage in behalf of our own development against the enormous influences of foreign capital seeking possession of our market.

To establish the truth in the Government of the country that the highest duty of the Republic not only to its own people, but to all, is to preserve its prosperous existence, and thus to compel by example the modification of harsher systems and the political emancipation of other peoples.

To all these general issues the Republican party of Pennsylvania, and, we believe, of the Nation, generally accords its most aggressive support.

Third, We, at the same time, invite public attention to the acts of the present Democratic National and State Administrations; to the unjust war of the former upon the "offensive partisans;" to its hypocritical avoidance of pledges touching the civil service; to its star chamber proceedings against Republicans for whose removal no public reason can be given, and to its constantly disloyal preference for the Rebel element of the Democratic party at the South and the semi-Rebel element of the same party at the North.

Attention to the acts of the Democratic State Administration cannot be withheld in view of the unjust, inexcusable, and painfully frequent abuse of the veto power; its studied proscription of the Union soldier and denial of claims universally sanctioned at the time of his enlistment; its want of charity, together with a partisan bias carried to extremes not dreamed of by any of the better elements.

With the administration the Republican party takes direct issue and carries its appeal to a people disappointed in every reasonable expectation and promise.

Fourth, The Republican members of the Legislature having twice passed apportionment bills more liberal to their political opponents than the existing law, and the Democratic members thereof having defeated the first measure, and a Democratic Governor having employed his veto power against the second, the Republican members have properly discharged their constitutional duty in the premises, and the responsibility for the failure of this legislation rests with the Democratic party.

Fifth, We especially commend the action of the Republican Legislature for the high regard which it manifested toward our manufacturing, mining, farming, and general laboring interests, and its patriotic and successful efforts to represent interests of the grand army of soldiers which Pennsylvania contributed to the support of the General Government.

Stage Rain Not Good Enough.

The king of Bavaria is a poet, and has a poet's eccentricities—with the advantage over all other poets of being able to gratify them, no matter what form they may take. He is fond of opera, but not fond of sitting in the presence of an audience; therefore, it has sometimes occurred in Munich that when an opera has been concluded and the painters were getting off their paint and finery a command has come to them to get their paint and finery on again. Presently the king would arrive, solitary and alone, and the players would begin at the beginning and do the entire opera over again with only that one individual in the vast, solemn theater for an audience. Once he took an odd freak into his head. High up and out of sight, over the prodigious stage of the Court theater, is a maze of interlacing water pipes, so pierced that in case of fire innumerable little thread-like streams of water can be caused to descend; and in case of need this discharge can be augmented to a pouring flood. American managers might make a note of that. The king was sole audience. The opera proceeded; it was a piece with a storm in it; the mimic thunder began to mutter, the mimic wind began to wail and sough, the mimic rain began to patter. The king's interest rose higher and higher; it developed into enthusiasm. He cried out:

"It is good, very good indeed! But I will have real rain! Turn on the water!"

The manager pleaded for a reversal of the command, said it would ruin the costly scenery and the splendid costumes, but the king cried:

"No matter, no matter; I will have real rain! Turn on the water!"

So the real rain was turned on and began to descend in gossamer lances to the mimic flower beds and gravel walks of the stage. The richly-dressed actors and actresses tripped out singing bravely and pretending not to mind it. The king was delighted—his enthusiasm grew higher. He cried out:

"Bravo! Bravo! More thunder! More lightning! Turn on more rain!"

The thunder boomed, the lightning glared, the storm winds raged, the deluge poured down. The mimic royalty on the stage, with their soaked satins clinging to their bodies, slopped around ankle-deep in water, warbling their sweetest and best, the fiddlers under the eaves of the stage sawed away for dear life, with the cold overflow spouting down the backs of their necks, and the dry and happy king sat in his lofty box and wore his gloves to ribbons applauding.

"More yet!" cried the king; "more yet—let loose all the thunder, turn on all the water. I will hang the first man who raises an umbrella."

When this most tremendous and effective storm that had ever been produced in any theater was at last over, the king's approbation was measureless. He cried out:

"Magnificent! magnificent! Encore! Do it again."

But the manager succeeded in persuading him to recall the encore, and said the company would feel sufficiently rewarded and complimented in the mere fact that the encore was desired by his majesty, without fatiguing him with a repetition to gratify their own vanity.

During the remainder of the act the lucky performers were those whose parts required change of dress; the others were a soaked, bedraggled and uncomfortable lot, but in the last degree picturesque. The stage scenery was ruined, trap doors so swollen that they wouldn't work for a week afterward, the fine costumes were spoiled, and no end of minor damage was done by the remarkable storm.

Remarkable Presence of Mind.

On a first night at the Theatre Francais, Regnier, the comedian, now deceased, displayed remarkable presence of mind. He was alone on the stage, and was supposed to be expecting anxiously the arrival of a friend. "He comes!" exclaimed Regnier, looking off on the left. "Joy! I had been awaiting him so impatiently." At this cue his friend entered—on the right. Some one had blundered—but who? There was no time for hesitation, and the veteran player's ready wit came to his aid. "Sly dog!" he said, jocosely, to the newly arrived; "you thought to take me by surprise, but I saw you in the looking-glass yonder." This brought down the house, though the audience had been on the point of hissing the very palpable blunder.

A Preacher Wanted.

"Philander," said a pretty girl to her bashful beau, "I wish you'd tie this ribbon at my throat; I can't see how to do it without a glass."

"Of course, I'll only be too glad to," he said, and at once grappled the strings.

After an unsuccessful effort of five minutes, during which he got as red as a brick house and perspired like a pitcher of ice-water on a July window sill, he stammered:

"I—I—don't think I can tie a respectable knot, Miss Mary."

"Suppose, Philander," she whispered with a pretty little blush, "suppose you call in a preacher to assist."

Like the unveiling of a beautiful mystery, the situation unfolded itself to Philander, and he feels better now.—Cincinnati Merchant Traveler.

The wood of the cork elm, ulmus racemosa, is heavier and stronger than that of the white elm or slippery elm. It is close grained, susceptible of fine polish and useful for agricultural implements, wheel stock, bridge timbers, etc. It is quite distinct in form from the other elms and deserves to be planted largely for ornament and use. It ranges from Southwestern Vermont through Western New York, Ontario and Southern Michigan to Iowa, and South through Ohio to Central Kentucky, reaching its best development in the Southern peninsula of Michigan.

Stories on the Road.

Commercial Travelers at a Wayside Inn—Something to Put in a Gripsack.

"Gentlemen, I almost envy you the positions you fill; your experience of the world; your knowledge of business; the changing sights you see, and all that, you know."

This warmly expressed regret fell from the lips of an elderly pleasure tourist, last August, and was addressed to a semicircle of commercial travelers seated on the porch of the Lindell Hotel, St. Louis, Mo.

"Yes," responded a New York representative of the profession, "a drummer isn't without his pleasures, but he has his risks, too—risks outside the chances of railroad collisions and steamboat explosions."

"What risks for instance?"

"This, for instance," said Mr. W. D. Franklin, who was then traveling for an Eastern house, and is known to merchants in all parts of the country: "The risk—which, indeed, amounts almost to a certainty—of getting the dyspepsia from perpetual change of diet and water and from having no fixed hours for eating and sleeping. I myself was an example. I say was, for I am all right now."

"No discount on your digestion?" broke in a Chicago dry goods traveler, lighting his cigar afresh.

"Not a quarter per cent. But I had to give up traveling for a while. The dyspepsia ruined my paper. Finally I came across an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC. I tried it and it fixed me up to perfection. There is nothing on earth, in my opinion, equal to it as a cure for dyspepsia."

Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of New York, the proprietors, hold a letter from Mr. Franklin stating that precise fact. PARKER'S TONIC aids digestion, cures malarial fevers, heartburn, headache, coughs and colds, and all diseases of the liver and kidneys. Will Meet at Cresson.

Commencing Tuesday, July 28, and continuing three days, the seventeenth annual session of the Pennsylvania State Dental society will be held at Cresson. The first day's session will open at 10 o'clock in the morning. W. B. Miller, D. D. S., of Altoona, is assistant secretary of the organization and is also a member of the executive, publication, and legislative action committees. George Elliott, D. D. S., of Meadville, is president of the society. The following is the programme for the first day: Morning—Calling to order; report of censors and receiving new members and delegates, calling roll, payment of dues and signing the constitution; reading the minutes; reports of officers, standing committes, delegates and miscellaneous business. Afternoon—Address of welcome, W. B. Miller, D. D. S., of Altoona; president's address, George Elliott, D. D. S., of Meadville. A number of essays will be read and discussions upon various subjects will be had during the time of meeting.

Storm Echoes.

MONTICELLO, Minn., July 10.—In the cyclone which passed north of this place the track of the storm was about five miles distant, and an ominous looking cloud was watched by about every one in town. The cloud was of a greenish hue and funnel-shaped, and as it danced across the prairie, now tearing up dirt from the ground, and again rising some distance in the air, it created a peculiar scene. A house between Big Lake and Becker was struck and nothing was left to tell where it stood, pieces of timber and furniture being scattered along over the prairie. The only things discovered near the place that were recognizable were some knives and forks, which were found about three hundred feet distant.

Some distance further a gentleman named Magee was driving a buggy. Magee saw the storm coming and hastened into the shelter of a clump of small trees. Near the trees, and between him and the storm was a knoll, which perhaps was what saved his life, as the cloud elevated and passed directly over him, without doing any harm. In the cloud he could see pieces of timber and wreckage whirling about, but his account is rather meagre. He admits he was too frightened to pay much attention to anything. About five hundred yards further on, an old stable was lifted from the ground and carried away, a house near by being unharmed. A little child playing in the yard was picked up and carried some distance, but landed near a fence unharmed, aside from a few scratches. Reports are slow in coming in, but so far no deaths have been reported, although several narrow escapes have occurred.

Brief Dispatches.

ANNA, Ill., July 9.—A bull dog belonging to John Tygett went mad on Tuesday and bit several children and twenty or thirty thoroughbred cattle. Several of the cattle died yesterday of hydrophobia, and it is supposed that all that were bitten will die. Their value is $10,000. Thus far the children have not shown signs of illness.

HUBBARD, O., July 9.—Thomas Pugh, aged 62, started yesterday for Greenville, Pa., to get $60,000 in the bank. His horse returned last night with the empty buggy covered with blood. No clue.

ALLENTOWN, July 9.—Stack No. 5 of the Allentown Iron company, which has been idle for more than a year, was put in blast to-day, after having been thoroughly overhauled.

NEWBERRY, Mich., July 9.—Forest fires are again raging fiercely four miles from this place. No serious damage has yet been reported.

PARIS, July 9.—It is rumored that the cholera has crossed the Spanish frontier into the department of Ande.

LIMA, July 9.—The news from the interior is to the effect that on the 4th inst. the entire force of General Coceres attacked the government troops, near Janja. The fighting lasted five hours and the result was undecided. The losses on both sides were severe. The next day General Mas notified General Coceres that Monsenor Tover was still anxious to arrive at the settlement and the armistice was renewed.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—It is understood an order was issued from the war department to-day to General Miles, directing him to disarm the Cheyenne Indians in the Indian Territory, who number between 1,200 and 1,500, and are armed with the best rifles and have considerable ammunition. A strong resistance is feared from the Indians.

LONDON, July 9.—Lord Mayor Fowler gave notice in the house of commons to-day of his intention to ask the government if they intended to erect a monument to General Gordon in Trafalgar Square. Lord Rothschild took his seat in the house of lords this afternoon.

Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child may partake of it and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex.

It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.

It is the juice of the Oporto Grapes, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Burgundy.

Is a dark rich medium Dry Wine, used by the wealthy classes as a Table or Dinner Wine, and by physicians in cases where a dry wine instead of a sweet port is desired.

Speer's (Socialte) Claret.

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry.

Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy.

IS A PURE distillation from the grape, and stands unrivaled in this country for medicinal purposes.

It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grape from which it is distilled.

The Strike in Michigan.

EAST SAGINAW, July 14.—The strike is still on and no steps have been taken at this end of the river looking to an adjustment. The strikers have contented themselves with holding meetings in which were made speeches denouncing the action of the authorities in bringing the detectives from Chicago, counseling moderation and advising the men to stand firm and they would succeed in the end. Meetings are called for to-day also. It is difficult to predict the outcome. Two or three mill-owners have announced a determination to start their mills to-day, and should they do so trouble will result.

LATER.—State Representative Barry, the leader of the strike, has just been arrested on complaint of Mayor Benjamin, of Saginaw City, under the statute which provides penalties for illegally entering upon the premises of another and inciting to disturbance and interfering with the prosecution of business. He is now trying to obtain bail. If he succeeds other warrants are ready to issue against him. All is quiet this morning. A posse of seventeen of Pinkerton's men arrived from Chicago this morning and were sent to Saginaw City. Whitney Batchelor's mill at Milbourn, eight miles below the city, started at eleven hours this morning, and others will do so to day.

BAY CITY, July 14.—The common council last night passed unanimously the following resolution:

Resolved, That this council views with regret and indignation the introduction into our city of an armed force of alien mercenaries as an insult to the honesty, loyalty and sense of duty of our law-abiding citizens, and that we hereby request the county authorities and board of police commissioners to take immediate steps to remove this standing menace from our midst, and we request all good citizens, if necessary, to assist the authorities in such action.

Governor Alger and staff are here. McLean's mill which started yesterday closed down to-day. The men demanded a contract to run ten hours at full pay, which was refused and the mill stopped.

A Flood in Illinois.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., July 14.—This region was visited by another tremendous rain yesterday, lasting over an hour, which deluged the grain fields. Reports continue to come in from Thursday's storm or water spout, showing it to be the most damaging ever known. Twenty-five miles east and northeast of this city several bridges on the Lake Erie and Western road were swept away. The damage done to railroads, crops, buildings and stock is estimated to be not less than $250,000.

The Mackinaw valley within one hour was submerged and thousands of acres of promising corn and thousands of shocks of newly cut grain were floated and carried away. Several bridges on the Lake Erie and Western railroad were washed out, together with half of the track at Saybrook. At Kappa, on the Illinois Central, the water rose ten feet within an hour, and at Selma a $50,000 iron bridge across the Mackinaw was swept away; a school house was moved from its foundations and carried half a mile away. Horses and cattle were killed by lightning and drowned, and in several places people were stunned by lightning. Old settlers say it was the greatest storm in twenty years.

Garrett's Bay Window.

BALTIMORE, July 13.—Mr. Robert Garrett, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was improving his handsome residence on Mount Vernon Place, in this city, and started to build a bay window which projected further over the sidewalk than is allowed by law. Mr. Henry Janes, a wealthy citizen, whose residence adjoins that of Mr. Garrett, complained that the projected improvement would cut off light from his house and brought suit to compel Mr. Garrett to refrain from exceeding the legal limit. Mr. Garrett kept his men at work and the building was finished, but to-day Judge Duffy, sitting in the Circuit Court, decided that Mr. Janes was entitled to the rights given him by law, and signed a decree ordering the removal of the objectionable bay window. The suit has been the subject of considerable talk and Mr. Garrett is the loser by probably $10,000.

Resisting a Reduction.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Most all of the brickyards in and around Chicago have shut down and about two thousand men are thrown out of employment. Last week it was decided to reduce wages fifty cents a day, and the men were notified, but the proposed reduction met with strenuous opposition and on Saturday night the men announced their intention of not resuming work this morning unless the standard rate of wages was paid. Each side remains firm in its intention to concede nothing to the other.

A Deluge of Rain.

PITTSBURG, July 13.—Shortly before dark this evening Allegheny valley was visited by one of the most disastrous storms ever know in that section. Rain fell in torrents for an hour, the wind blew a hurricane and thunder and lightning were incessant. Reports of great damage have been received from various points along the Allegheny road between this city and Titusville. At Hamersville lightning struck the telegraph office killing instantly James McFeeders, student, aged 12 years, and rendering unconscious the the operator, Miss Mary Hazlett. The building was partly wrecked. Miss Hazlett was removed to a neighboring house and soon recovered. She was not seriously injured.

At Freeport four inches and a half of rain fell in an hour, flooding cellars yards and streets and covering the, West Penn and Butler branch railroads with water to a depth of several feet. The tracks in some places have been washed away and in others the debris is piled five feet high. Trains have been stopped in all directions. At Hite's station a freight train ran into a land slide and was badly wrecked, but no one was injured, so far as known. Peter's creek, near Leechburg, is swollen beyond its banks and numerous oil and gas derricks were washed down the stream. Kirkpatrick & Co's steel plant at Leechburg is under water and the loss will reach many thousands of dollars. The loss in grain and hay alone in this and surrounding districts is something fearful to contemplate.

Millions of Grasshoppers.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., July 13.—As the northbound train yesterday on the Mexican extension of the Southern Pacific road approached La Aura, in the State of Coahuila, it passed under an enormous cloud of grasshoppers that were flying westward. So dense was the living cloud that for half an hour the sunlight was obscured. The train stopped and the passengers gathered specimens, which proved to be of the genuine Kansas variety. But few of the hoppers alighted near the train. The cloud appeared to be about fifteen miles in length by two miles wide.

Old Mexicans say no such number of grasshoppers have been seen in Coahuila in fifty years. La Aura is 150 miles south of Eagle Pass. People throughout the entire States of Coahuila and Chihauhua are terror-stricken at the prospects of famine before them. Superstitious religious zealots and fortune tellers are everywhere predicting the most direful and bloody calamities imaginable for poor debt-ridden Mexico in the near future.

A German Officer's Suicide.

LONDON, July 12.—The Telegraph prints a Berlin letter giving the particulars of a court scandal. A Prince, thirty-five years of age, a near relative of Emperor William and son of one of the heroes of the French war, after an entertainment with companions at the Emperor's Chateau Sans Souci, near Berlin, supped at Hiller's, in Berlin, and thence went to a house frequented by the Jennesse Doree. The band sang and shouted and threw bottles through the windows. During the orgie the Prince quarreled with Lieutenant Prittwitz, of the First Regiment of Silesian Cuirassiers, and boxed his ears. The police arrived on the scene and persuaded the party to go home. Lieutenant Prittwitz, feeling dishonored before his comrades and etiquette forbidding a duel with a Prince of the house, of Hohenzollern, shot himself, leaving a letter of explanation. The Emperor wrote a letter of condolence to the lieutenant's father. The Prince is under military arrest.

A Fatal Storm on the Lake.

ST. PAUL, July 12.—Reports received here at 9. p. m. show that a furious storm struck Lake Minnetonqua this morning, capsizing a steam yacht. Eight persons have been drowned. The names of the unfortunate party are as follows. Ex-Mayor A. C. Rand and wife, Mary Rand, and two sons, Harvey and Frank; J. R. Coykendall and wife, Kate Koykendall, and George McDonald, engineer, all of Minneapolis. Two bodies have already been recovered. The storm is described by eye-witnesses as terrific. Other boats are believed to have been lost, but it is difficult to get the details. Great excitement.

All Up with the Mahdi.

CAIRO, July 12.—General Brackenbury telegraphs from Fatmeh that a letter which was received there yesterday states that El Mahdi is dead. The letter was written by a merchant at Handak on July 8, and it says that since the prophet's death his followers have fallen to fighting among themselves.

A refugee Egyptian soldier, who arrived at Fatmeh to-day, General Brakenbury says, asserts that he saw an Arabon the 1st of July at Abandom who told that El Mahdi was dead.

Maxwell.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—The steamer Australia, which left Auckland June 23, arrived to-day. Maxwell, since his capture, is each week regularly remanded for extradition and there will be no trouble. He will arrive here on the Zelandia August 9. The Australia upon entering the harbor fired a salute. The cannon burst and much damage was done to the woodwork of the cabin. No person was hurt.

An Eleven-Year-Old Bride.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 12.—George F. Stedman, 40 years old, of Sebec, was married a few days ago to Grace Pretzle, a little child of 11 years, living in the same town. The Town Clerk at first refused to issue a license, but the consent of the child's parents being given no legal ground for refusal remained and the marriage ceremony was performed at once.

The Rebels Vanquished.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Senor Becerra, Colombian minister, received to-day a telegram from Bogata announcing that the rebels of Barronsville, persisting in their determination to ascend the Magdalena river, had been completely routed at Calanar Their fleet of sixteen vessels suffered considerable damage through the explosion of one which was laden with ammunition. Almost all of the revolutionary leaders are supposed to have been either killed or seriously wounded. It is believed that the explosion of the vessel was caused by a shot fired by government troops. The government has taken vigorous measures to prevent the rebels from obtaining munitions of war or provisions from the coast and has already stationed a gun boat at the port of Sabanilla. News of final subjection of rebels is expected by Senor Becerra at any moment.

Fire at Albany.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 12.—A. M. Burch's stables, together with twenty-three horses, a number of valuable carriages, a quantity of harness, etc., were destroyed by fire this morning. The flames communicated James A. Gray's piano factory which with valuable stock was also destroyed. During the progress of this fire four men were buried under falling walls. John A. Luhey, foreman of No. 2, was rescued alive, but died shortly afterward. Rufus H. Townsend, of No. 4, was taken to the hospital in a critical condition. Fred W. Allen, foerman of No. 4, was crushed about the body and is a mass of bruises. Daniel Wheeler's dead body was found in the ruins. Total loss between $75,000 and $100,000.

Attempt to Wreck a Train.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 11.—A ten-foot piece of track rail was found on the Delaware and Hudson railroad track, 100 feet this side of Mohawk bridge last night, just before the arrival of the 11 o'clock train from Saratoga. Several tramps, who were refused lodging in the roundhouse, are suspected and cannot be found. An employe at the roundhouse, while going for a drink of water, discovered the rail. It was placed on a switch frog so that the pilot could not have pushed it aside, and the train would have been wrecked.

Hanlan Walks on the Water.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., July 13.—Edward Hanlan, the oarsman, gave an exhibition of walking on the water at this place Saturday. The feat, which was successfully performed, was witnessed by a large crowd. Hanlan says that with his new invention he will cross the St. Lawrence from the Thousand Island House to Westminster Park on Monday. Many anxious spectators attempted the feat, but came to grief and were baptized in the river, to the great pleasure of the lookers on.

Democrats Against Prohibition.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, July 13.—The Key City democratic club, composed of leading business and professional men, has adopted a resolution in favor of having the state democratic convention adopt the plank declaring for a repeal of prohibition and the adoption in its stead of a uniform license law of $500, with proper bonds and restrictions similar to the Nebraska law. This action is considered significant, coming from Dubuque, where an intense anti-prohibition sentiment prevails.

Big Lumber Fire.

OSCODA, Mich., July 13.—Fire broke out in the Au Sable lumber company's docks at 7.30 this morning, and at this hour is still raging. Already several thousand dollars worth of lumber has been burned Fears are entertained for the large mill of the company, which, should the wind change before the fire is controlled, will surely be destroyed. The fire originated from a slab burner. The water works system is incomplete and a fire tug and pony pumps are playing on the fire.

A Little Picnic with Prisoners.

RICHMOND, Va., July 12.—Three prisoners escaped from the penitentiary this afternoon, but were discovered by the guard and pursuit instituted a number of citizens joining in the chase. Shotguns and pistols were freely used, the convicts returning the fire. They were finally captured after two of them had been wounded. Two citizens, Peyton Hundley and Wesley N. Smith, were shot by the prisoners. Hundley's wounds are thought to be fatal.

Needn't Accept the Dolphin.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Attorney General Garland has rendered a decision on the three points relative to the acceptance of the Dolphin by the government, submitted to him by Secretary Whitney. The attorney general holds that the vessel cannot be accepted by the secretary of the navy; that no contract exists between John Roach and the government and that a large sum of money paid to him for the vessel may be recovered.

A Cloud Bursts.

TITUSVILLE, July 13.—A cloud burst about one mile south of town at 5 o'clock this afternoon and the stream entering Oil creek near Centre City, rose to an unprecedented height. Many houses were were moved from their foundations and several were washed away. A number of families had narrow escapes. Two bridges went down the creek and the roads were badly washed. There was no loss of life, but the damage to property was very great.

A Satchel Worth $30,000 Lost.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., July 12.—Mrs James H. McMullen, of Portland, came here yesterday and took a Beach train for Bay View. Either on the Boston and Maine or on the Beach Road she dropped a satchel containing $30,000 worth of diamonds, some other jewelry and government bonds.

The Cleveland Strike.

CLEVELAND, July 13.—The strikers held a meeting in Newburg this afternoon. William J. Gorsuch, editor of a Socialistic sheet in Chicago, was present, and made a speech. He advocated theft, arson and murder, saying that the rich had no right to hold and keep property. He grew very excited, and defied the police and State authorities, and finally the Federal Government, saying that he would fight like a tiger if any one attempted to arrest him. While he was making these statements a policeman tapped him on the shoulder, and he meekly permitted himself to be taken to the police station and locked up. He was charged with using language to incite a riot. He arrived here this morning from Pittsburg. All serious trouble it is thought is over. The strikers remained indoors to-day.

The Exhibition Buildings Sold.

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—All the buildings, plant, etc., of the late World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition were sold at auction to-day to the new company known as the North, Central and South American Exposition, for $175,000, that being the exact amount owed by the former concern. At the same time four writs of attachment were sued out by creditors of the late company for $94,819 for material used in the construction of the buildings.

13,000 Deaths.

MADRID, July 13.—The cholera has broken out in four places in the Province of Jaen. Forty-two new cases were reported yesterday in that province and eighteen deaths from the disease. The official report shows a total of thirty thousand cases in Spain since the inception of the scourge up to last evening and a total of thirteen thousand deaths. In the whole of Spain yesterday there were eleven hundred and ninety-seven new cases of cholera and five hundred and eighty-eight deaths.

Russians Flog an English Official

TEHERAN, July 13.—The Russians imprisoned the clerk of the English consul at Askabad and flogged him and threatened him with death unless he divulged the names of English agents secretly operating on the frontier. Finally, after a spell of hard labor, they released him. He has arrived at Meshed. There are numerous indications of Russian aggressive intentions on the frontier.

Mica.

READING, Pa., July 13.—Considerable excitement was created at Sheridan, Lebanon county, this morning by the receipt of news from South Mountain, three miles distant, that a mine of mica had been discovered on the Joel Trexler tract. A 30-foot shaft has been sunk. A rich deposit of mica worth from $3 to $9 a pound was struck.

Threw at the Kaiser's Carriage.

EMS, July 12.—While Emperor William was taking a drive to-day a miserably-dressed man threw a flower-pot at his carriage, exclaiming: "Thus will the empire break." No damage was done. The man was arrested. He is supposed to be insane.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

Want More Wages.

About 200 coal miners of the Cambria Iron company, at Johnstown, refused to go to work Saturday morning on account of low wages. Last week a committee was appointed to request of the officials an increase of ten per cent. per ton. There being no satisfactory reply to their request, the miners notified the company Friday that they would not go to work Saturday morning unless some satisfactory arrangements were made. The men met at the mines Saturday morning and discussed the question. A meeting of the committee and General Manager Chapin and Mining Engineer Fulton took place. Mr. Chapin said the company could not increase wages at this time, but as soon as business brightens they would do so.—Altoona Tribune.

—Sylvester D. Ray, Esq., has purchased the large double frame house on Howard street, in part of which he resides, and will put some important improvements on it and also on the grounds surrounding it. An ornamental terrace to be made in the yard will add much to its appearance and commodious porches are to be added to the house. He will also probably repaint the house in neat style and when these improvements are completed it will be an ornament to the street.

—The annual State Encampment of the G. A. R. of Pennsylvania, will be held at Gettysburg, in August next. Arrangements have been made to light up the encampment by electric light. An electric car will be run on the Round Top switch, and connection made with the camp, through 6,000 feet of the wire. This will be a great improvement on pine knots and tallow dips.

—The members of the Citizens' Cornet Band, of Milesburg, desire to return their thanks to all who so liberally patronized them at their festival and especially to those who assisted in the labor of getting up and making it a success. They fully appreciate the assistance received from outside parties.

—The silvery, crescent moon was hung out Tuesday night.

The Bellefonte Postmaster.

From the Altoona Times, Dem.

The appointment of Dr. Dobbins as postmaster at Bellefonte may be all right, and we hope it is, but as he is said to be in no need of the office, having a large and lucrative practice and only himself to provide for, we cannot but think that ex-Governor Curtin would have served the people fully as well and covered himself with more glory if he had used his influence in favor of Joe. W. Furey, associate editor of the Watchman, who has served his party long and faithfully and had a right to expect better treatment than he has received from an administration which he, in common with other Democratic journalists of the country, labored so zealously and efficiently to bring into power.

—What is this country coming to anyway? We thought the American dude bad enough, but in Washington they have an Austrian dude setting the style by appearing at evening receptions dressed in skin tight fitting suit of blue silk tights, with a short blue silk braided jacket. During the day he changes his suit three times. In the morning he appears in buff, followed by slate, and in the evening white. He has a dog to match in color each suit. Talk about the ladies with Mother Hubbard dress and their pet pugs! Don't you think that the men who get themselves up in this dude order score one higher on the ridiculous than they?

—That was a remarkably grand rain on Monday night. It began early and continued uninterruptedly until morning. It soaked down deep into the earth and made all sorts of vegetation rejoice. The corn was so glad that it began to tassel; the potatoes sang out quite loud, "In a week from now you must take us up and put us in a safe place for winter." The beans held a convention and decided to yield for a week longer. Vegetables, flowers, trees and everything else drank deep of this nectar from the clouds and gave out a chorus of thanks and praise.

The daily attendance at the rooms averaged 34 for the week ending July 11.

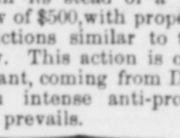
The membership is increasing constantly and quite rapidly.

—By the first of August, Spring Mills will be connected with the Bellefonte Exchange. This will also bring Potters Mills, which is now a toll station, into the Bellefonte exchange.

Signs of the Seasons.

[From the Evansville Argus.

When the winds are cold and chill and wet
The iceman ne'er your house will miss;
The piece of ice you always get
Is large and shapely, just like this:



But when 'tis awful, burning hot,
And sultry winds the parched earth kiss,
In case you are not clean forgot,
You get a little chunk like this:

Tyrone Tidings Told by "Bald Eagle."

TYRONE, Pa., July 14.

Chas. Thomas, Esq., is acting as salesman in the store of Study Bro. & Co. during the absence of Willie in West Virginia.

The Altoona Tribune can be found on the counter of A. M. Wooden's confectiontry store.

Fred Harris, of post office fame, has the inside track—Jerry being out of the way—and is looked upon as the coming "master of the burg."

The Herald has rolled up its sleeves and will unfurl the banner for Mathew Stanley Quay. Rah! Blair county will be found in the battle.

J. W. Cooke, of lumber fame, Bellefonte, was on our streets Tuesday. Mr. Cook is going to purchase a white "L. E. Phant."

Gen. James A. Beaver was in town Tuesday a. m.

Hon. W. A. Wallace went east on Philadelphia express Monday evening.

W. Fisk Conrad will soon have his new building on the way.

R. K. Bonine, the photographer, will soon move into his new room in the Symington building, where he will be glad to see his patrons.

Rev. Geo. Leidy, P. E., delivered an impressive sermon to the people of Tyrone in the M. E. church Sunday evening, after which the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered.

John Fisher is pushing his building to completion.

Tyrone is to have a new M. E. church. Very commendable on the part of the church.

Frank Guyer brought in 48 fine trout from Vanscoyoc run Monday evening.

T. A. Haupt and wife spent Sunday in Huntingdon.

Glorious—the rain on Monday.

C. J. Kegel does the leading business in clothing and hats and furnishing goods in Tyrone. Call on him

Chief Burgess McCann can be seen any time on the street with an eye to the good order of the city.

Prof. A. W. Green has the first edition of Gen. Grant's books and the agency for Blair county. It is the only original in the county. Look out for counterfeits. Go to Green's.

Jerry Cox wears the same size collar that he did when leaving Tyrone. No elevation, Jerry says.

Mr. Osburn and wife, of Port Matilda, were in Tyrone on Sunday.

Patrick McCann, chief clerk at Scales, smokes 10c cigars.

A. M. Wooden turns out 10,000 "511" brand cigars a month, only place in Tyrone you can get them. Try them.

C. McOmber, of the Ward House, is visiting in the East.

R. B. Freeman, is agent for the Orwig Practical Railroad time calculator. All railroad men should have one. Call on him at Tyrone depot.

John Bunley, of the Wabash and Pacific R. R., will go west and resume duty at the throttle in a few days, accompanied by Westley McCann.

Base ball on the decline—skating rink dead—drunks less—order good.

Base ball Thursday; Stars vs. Hopes, of Altoona.

Cherries by the bushel.

Peaches are coming along slowly.

H. W. Swoope has the appointment of patrolman on Logan street, between Juniata and Dallas streets. Good selection; he is about to retire from the lumber business.

Ice cream festival at Bald Eagle Saturday evening for church benefit. Let everybody go there and help a good cause.

"Duplex," of the Herald, is seen peeping around the corner very often.

This being pay day, Study Bro. & Co. are doing a lightning business. Lead off in dry goods, etc.

Business in general is very dull here.

The first No., Vol. 1, of Temperance Call, edited by J. Walter Moore, (son of Rev. Dr. Moore, Tyrone,) and connected with the Presbyterian Temperance Association, of which S. S. Blair, Esq., is president, is on our table, and a newsy sheet it is, and very commendable on the part of the Sunday-school. We hope for it a long life and that its efforts may be crowned with success in putting down the damning man-killer, homes-robber and murderer, "Rum." This is what fills our prisons, destroys the home, places poverty where prosperity belongs and sorrow where happiness belongs.

George Gardner runs out the boss soda water and does the boss business. Run in and see him.

It was April 5, 1885, that the fast sending contest took place in the dining room of the Western Union Telegraph Company's building, New York, between 12 of the champion telegraph operators for a prize of $25 for first, $15 second, $10 third, etc. The message sent was of great skill, regarding France's friendship for American Independence from Great Britain. The whole selection contains as per "operator" 5:

500 words—	2334	characters.
15 periods—	30	"
4 commas—	4	"
Total of	2,368	".

Mr. F. G. P. Griffith won the 5th prize, sending the above in 13 minutes and 15 seconds, sending with left hand, winning prize for remarkable speed and excellent manipulation. Now, allow me say that Mr. J. Downes, the lightning slinger of Tyrone Div., in the presence of your correspondent, sent the above in 13 minutes, with unusual speed and excellency, slightly marred by faults in the formation of some characters, thus beating the time of the winner of the 5th champion prize 15 seconds. We will have him trained and in the field in a few weeks. "D," accept our congratulation as the boss sender of Tyrone Div. Come, boy, step up to the front. BALD EAGLE.

Philipsburg Again.

The livery stable is, we think, "kinder" overdone in this city.

South Philipsburg is improving rapidly, and is now a very pleasant place. It was founded by W. W. Hale, and is only a little over two years old.

Rider, the wholesale ice cream manufacturer, is doing a good and increasing business.

Mr. Lewis Brown, of Shirleysburg, Huntingdon county, has been engaged by the Moshannon Tanning Co., of this city. He is a good tanner and this company were lucky in getting him here.

The churches were well attended Sunday. It was a beautiful day.

W. W. Cole's circus will show in this city on August 4th. The advance agent was here on Thursday of last week, and the advertising car will be here in a few days.

John H. Miller, the miller and flour dealer, of Petersburg, Huntingdon county, was in town attending to business for his firm on Friday. John is a first class business man.

James Laurie is visiting his brother Will in this place.

Walter Scott, one of the best typos in Philipsburg, and an employe on the Ledger, spent most of last week in Williamsport, and not in Clearfield, as stated by the Journal.

Bicycles are becoming quite numerous in this city.

For a copy of Gen. Grant's book call on C. B. Martin, formerly editor of Ledger, he having the agency exclusively, hereabouts.

John Aikens, plumber at this place with Harry Cunningham, left Saturday for a short visit to Williamsburg, Blair county. John would like to have gone on the Fourth, but business would not permit him to do so.

The central park needs mowing badly. SOME ONE.

—We have received a copy of sheet music entitled the G. A. R. Grand March, composed by John Wiegand, dedicated to John S. Kountz, of Toledo, Ohio, the drummer boy at Mission Ridge, late commander in chief of the G. A. R. It is published by Ign Fischer, of Toledo, Ohio. The title page bears a very fine portrait of the late commander and is appropriately and emblematically inscribed with cannons, guns, flags, etc. The music is fine and spirited with a melody very majestic and inspiring, as well as patriotic, seeming to bear one back to the incident of the battle of Mission Ridge when the "drummer boy" beat manfully his charge to victory and to death. Through the inspiring strains of this march, his memory will ever be fresh in the minds of the people. Price, solo 50c., duet 75c., air for brass band 75c.

A Grand Time at Yankeetown.

Yankeetown, this county, will be the scene of considerable festivity next Saturday afternoon and evening, the 18th instant. Among the exercises of the day will be two balloon ascensions. A balloon will be sent up in the afternoon and an immense fire balloon in the evening. Parson Hicks will deliver one of his characteristic and entertaining addresses. Refreshments, which will include ice cream and hot coffee, will be for sale. The Cedar Run Cornet Band and the Linn Drum Corps will be present to discourse music. The proceeds realized from these festivities will be given to the M. E. church of that place. Go early, stay all day, enjoy yourself and help a good cause.

—Ex-Sheriff Woodring declined the appointment of government storekeeper at Haag's distillery and John Ward, of Stormstown, has been appointed to the position. A Mr. Geary, of Lock Haven, has been appointed stamp agent for this district, to succeed Mr. Kinsloe, of that place. Mr. Nelson Lucas will go to-day to Washington to begin his duties as messenger in the Interior Department and Mr. David Noll has been appointed to a position on the coast survey.

Over 18,000 loaded freight cars pass through Indianapolis weekly.

Grove Meeting.

A grove meeting will be held (D. V.) on land of William Resides, near Messiah's church, three miles from Unionville, commencing Tuesday evening, July 28th, and continuing over the following Sabbath. Services each afternoon at 2 30, and evening at 7·30. Three services on Sunday. Revs. L. Osler, G. R. Penney and other ministers may be expected to be present. Themes relating to time and eternity, grace and glory, the kingdoms of this world and the kingdoms universal, everlasting, and soon to be set up by the God of heaven, will be presented. The public are invited. M. L. JACKSON.

Snow Shoe, July 14, 1885.

—Yankeetown will hold one of the grandest festivals ever held in this or any other valley in the State, Saturday, the 18th of July. Two bands of music will be in attendance. Refreshments of all kinds will be served, including hot coffee, etc. One of the leading amusements will be the catching of a greased pig. The public in general are invited to come and bring their children—if they have no children to borrow their neighbors'.

—We have counted 33 practicing attorneys in Bellefonte. We heard a gentleman say on Tuesday that there are 37, and if those who have been admitted but do not practice are included, the total number will be about 50.

—The advance coach of W. W. Cole's circus visited Bellefonte last night and the fifteen employes on the car are at work to-day billing the town and the country round with illustrations of the great show.

—The work of kalsomining the interior of the Court House is about completed. The workmen will be engaged about two weeks longer upon the other repairs to the building.

Some American railways are adopting an ingenious device by which the weight of an approaching train raises the gates at road and street crossings. After the train has passed, the gates fall again by their own weight to allow traffic to proceed.

SPECIAL MENTION.

—The gentle rain which fell Monday night, although a blessing to some, proved the contrary to a certain young gent in town, who attired in a suit new and handsome had occasion to be out—somewhere. The tailor was given the job of pressing them out next morning.

A Tonic in the True Sense of the Word.

Not all medicinal preparations called tonics are such. A mere stimulant of appetite, which gives a simple "fillip to Nature"—which removes no obstacle to her processes in the human system, is in no true sense a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters not only far transcends in purity the ordinary unmedicated stimulants of commerce, the cheap local bitters, and eye openers vended as tonics, but where they are powerless to do more than impart a temporary stimulus to appetite, the Bitters restores digestion, remedies billousness and insures regularity in the habit of body. It is, therefore, a tonic in the true sense of the word, for does it not renew harmony of tone in the most important functions of the body, where all before was discordant, feeble and inharmonious? Besides this, its invigorating and regulating effects constitute it the best possible safeguard against malarial diseases. It conquers rheumatism, kidney complaints and nervousness.

—The second annual reunion of the eighty-fourth regiment veteran volunteers will be held at Gettysburg, Pa., on the 11th of August.

Physicians' Wine of the Oporto Grape.

Physicians say they have been using Speer's Port Grape Wine for years to the entire satisfaction of their patients and themselves, and take great pleasure in recommending the Port, Burgundy and Claret to the public as the most reliable they can find. The Port is especially recommended for consumptives, the aged and for females generally. For sale by druggists.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The monthly edition of Golden Days is on our table, and we find on our examination that it is as always "a rift of sunshine among the shadows." Filled with the very choicest reading obtainable and embellished with the finest illustrations and designs, giving only the most select poems, it certainly constitutes the main in giving the reading young the most attractive and the very best placed before the public. Its entire contents are of such a character as will tend to the creating an ardent love and appetite for pure reading; such matter as will instill or imbue into the minds of the young nobler aims, higher ambitions, and impel them to worthier deeds. A publication of the tone and character of Golden Days should be found in every household, and parents should be particular in their selection of reading matter for their children and have only the pure moral literature, such as is ever found in Golden Days, and the result will be a marked upbuilding of society in general and a higher state of cultivated taste of the reading public. Only $3 per year in advance. Published by James Elverson, N. W. Cor. Ninth & Spruce streets, Phila., Pa

Two very striking portraits appear in the July Century. One, the frontispiece, being that of Frederic Wistral, and the other a full page portrait of Henry Clay. No less striking than the portraits are the articles accompanying them. An article on "Social Life in the Colonies," by Edward Eggleton, appears in this number. A paper on "George Elliot," by Rose G. Kingsley, will be found very interesting but the most attractive and instructive is "The Century War Series," as contributed by different authors. This series of writings is not only very fascinating but it is very instructive and, generally appreciated by all, being something pertaining to our own country, it can be read with interest and profit. We also find in this number different poems by eminent writers, which adds greatly to its attraction. Published by The Century Company, New York.

The State Convention.

HARRISBURG, July 8.—It will never be hotter than it was in the hall of the house this morning. And there never will be a bigger crush at the door than there was at the house doors about 9.45, when every delegate, press representative and spectator wanted to get in at the same time, and the confusion was great. Chairman Cooper took possession of the speaker's chair about 10 o'clock and began to answer a thousand and one questions, with George Pearson's help, until 10.30. At that hour he rapped the gavel and called the convention to order, requesting the delegates to be seated. Secretary Pearson read the call for the convention, and then Chairman Cooper announced the following officers:

Sergeant-at-Arms—John W. Simpson, W. E. Gross, Charles P. Keech, H. S. Reinhold, George Krause, H. B. Weand, Thomas Bell, Joseph Higgins.

Door-keepers—Benjamin P. Thompson, John Alter, Gilbert Ball, W. Wilkins, Oscar Adams, Henry Conner, Warren Jackson, W. Hoffman, James Hunter, J. D. Sullivan.

Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms—William Beidelman, W. Walker.

The roll of delegates was then called as made up from credentials presented to the state chairman. At the conclusion of the roll-call Hon. W. B. Rodgers, of Allegheny, was elected temporary chairman and the following gentlemen were appointed secretaries: E. W. Patton, Philadelphia; J. W. Landis, Lancaster; J. R. Harrah, Beaver; W. K. Beck, Lackawanna, and W. A. Francis, Tioga. The various committees were then announced.

Mr. Brooks, from the committee on organization, made report recommending Hon. James S. Biery, of Lehigh, for permanent chairman, and C. M. Mann, Grier Hersh, D. Beckley and H. Sweeney for additional secretaries and a vice president from each senatorial district. C. L. Dick, of Cambria county, was made a vice president from this district. Mr. Bierly made a speech in which he returned his thanks for the honor conferred upon him. The committee on contested seats made a report. The committee on rules reported a rule that the convention shall not be called before the third Wednesday in August, except in presidential years. This was amended to also except gubernatorial years, and adopted.

The convention then proceeded to name candidates for the nomination of state treasurer. Colonel A. Wilson Norris, of Philadelphia, nominated Mathew S. Quay, of Beaver county; Hon. John Cessna, of Bedford, nominated Jacob H. Longenecker, of Bedford county; Hon. William Burgess nominated Hon. Henry C. Greenawalt, of Franklin county; J. Hay Brown, of Lancaster, nominated James A. McDevitt, of Lancaster; H. A. Baldridge, of Blair, in a forcible speech, in which he referred eloquently to the good traits of his candidate, presented the name of Theodore H. Wigton, of Blair, a man highly esteemed through all the Juniata valley, a brave soldier, a gentleman of ability, of high business character and great popularity. Mr. Wigton's name was loudly applauded.

The balloting began at 1:15 o'clock and resulted as follows:

Quay	199½
Longenecker	27
Wigton	5
McDevitt	15
Greenawalt	7

The announcement of the chair that Quay was nominated was loudly cheered

Mr. Burgess moved that the nomination be made unanimous, which was agreed to without a dissenting voice, a rare compliment in a state convention.

General Reeder, Colonel Burgess and W. C Quest were appointed a committee to wait on Colonel Quay and invite him to the convention.

Hon. H. L. Boyer, of Philadelphia, offered a resolution pledging the, support of the party to the candidate as follows:

"To the republicans of Pennsylvania this convention presents for state treasurer a candidate who has won celebrity for bravery in war and wisdom in peace—a life-long, earnest, radical republican, yet withal so broad and generous in his views and conduct that his every effort has been directed to securing the unity and success of the party. This life record entitles him to the support by a united party in a state which prides itself not only upon being the Keystone of the union, but the centre of that political thought which best guards and promotes American interests."

The resolution was unanimously agreed to.

The committee appointed to wait upon Colonel Quay and invite him to the convention reported through General Reeder that he had nothing to say to the convention at this time except to return to the convention his sincere thanks to all those who supported him. They will hear from him at a future time in a formal manner.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

Robbery in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The most daring and adroitly executed robbery that has taken place in Chicago for many years was committed yesterday afternoon at No. 50 Eldridge court, the residence of Thomas Smith, head draughtsman of the Dearborn foundry, at No. 1525 Dearborn street. Mr. Smith is in receipt of a good salary, and although a lessee of a box in the vaults of the Union Safe and Deposit company, it has been his practice for some time past to entrust a large portion of his earnings with his wife.

Mrs. Smith is a stout lady about 26 years old. When her husband went to work after dinner she was left alone in their rooms, which include all of the apartments on the first floor. A ring at the bell called Mrs. Smith to the front door. Two men dressed as mechanics were standing there. They introduced themselves as plumbers sent by the landlord. Mrs. Smith, unsuspicious, led the way to the kitchen. She stood by the door as the first one entered, and after waiting a moment turned to let the other man pass. As she turned he struck her a terrible blow with his fist, which caused her to fall on her knees. Before she had time to cry out her assailant's fingers were fastened on her neck. Then the other man drew a rope from a sack he carried and proceeded to bind her hands and feet. A towel was drawn together across her mouth and both ends tied together back of her head. The robbers then tore open the bosom of Mrs. Smith's dress and got hold of a wallet containing $1,030

Suddenly the door bell rang. One of the fellows coolly answered the summons. Mr. Timothy and wife, friends of the Smiths, had stopped to make a friendly call. While one of the robbers held Mrs. Smith on the floor with his hand pressed over her mouth to prevent her uttering a sound, the other informed the callers that Mrs. Smith was ill and unable to see any visitors. Then he closed and locked the door.

"What shall we do with her?" he said.

"Kill her. That's the only thing to do," said the other. "Then she'll never squeal."

"I don't want to kill a woman in cold blood," rejoined the first speaker.

"You need't do it in cold blood," answered the other. "Just set fire to the house and let her burn up."

Then Mrs. Smith saw the man who spoke last sieze a kerosene lamp as if to execute his threat. The can proved to be empty. He cast it from him with an oath and cried, "Let's dump her into the bath tub and turn on the water. She'll drown like a rat."

A moment's consultation ensued, however, and the would-be murderers quietly walked to the front door, closing it after them and leaving Mrs. Smith on the floor bound hand and foot and almost dead from fright.

Half an hour elapsed before she gained strength enough to attempt loosening the bonds about her wrist. It took another half hour to do so. Dragging herself on her knees she finally reached the front door. A passer-by was apprised of what had taken place and the police were notified. Up to this morning they had obtained no clue, and are able to accomplish nothing except caution Mr. Smith not to say anything about the affair to reporters. Mrs. Smith has been prostrated by the shock. She is now seriously ill.

General Grant's Condition.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 9.—General Grant last night slept the sleep of extreme fatigue, and the four hours between 11 p. m. and 3 a. m. were passed without an instant of wakefulness. He would have slept on then had not Dr. Douglass awakened him to give him food. His throat was then cleansed, and the general at once fell into a sleep that continued without interruption until 9 o'clock this morning.

"The sick man was very much fatigued, and too great a demand was made upon his powers yesterday afternoon and evening," said Dr. Douglass, "but he shows no ill effects, so far as I can judge this morning, although he has been sleeping the greater part of the time from 6 to 9. I think he has sustained yesterday's strain exceedingly well."

The morning was warm, the thermometer standing at 82 degrees, but at 1 p. m. a shower cooled the air. The general has been out to-day only a moment. "He is having a wonderfully good day, considering his fatigue of yesterday," said Dr. Douglass at 2 p. m.

The day has been a quiet one for General Grant. This afternoon he wrote for Dr. Douglass: "Have rested finely and slept little since you were here at noon. Now, however, is the time my month begins to fill up and I don't have it so pleasant." "The general passed the hours from 4 until 6 perfectly well," said Dr. Douglass this evening, and then he added, "I have to-day noticed nothing about his case locally or generally to show he has been disturbed particularly by the interviews of yesterday. He has suffered no more pain than yesterday before 3 o'clock."

Heavy Storms in the West.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Reports of heavy wind storms throughout a large part of Wisconsin, amounting in some localities to disastrous cyclones, are being received. Telegraph wires between Milwaukee and St. Paul are all down and service generally northwest of there is so demoralized by the storm that no particulars have been ascertained. The wind here is rapidly rising, it now amounting to almost a gale, accompanied by fierce flashes of lightning and heavy thunder. The day has been oppressively hot.

Storms in the State.

WILKES-BARRE, July 9.—A severe thunder storm passed over this city this afternoon, accompanied by very heavy rain. The residence of Henry Ansbacher was struck by lightning and the roof partly destroyed. No one in the house was hurt, but in the house next door a lady and two children sustained slight shocks. A. W. McIntosh, a well known citizen, sustained a severe shock which completely paralyzed his left side and rendered him unconscious for several hours. His condition is very critical. Several other people in town were shocked, but no one else was seriously injured.

ASHLAND, July 9.—During the storm here this afternoon the wheel house of the Anthracite Powder-mill was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. There are usually from forty to fifty kegs of powder under the wheels, but fortunately they had been removed before the building was struck. The connections between the buildings, which are about ten yards apart, were broken, thereby avoiding a complete wreck of the entire mill.

She Married Him.

CHAMBERSBURG, July 9.—A spicy little romance has just come to light which has furnished an interesting and amusing topic to the citizens of Hagerstown and this place. On Monday last a large number of invited guests assembled at the residence of Mrs. Andre H. Hager, in Hagerstown, to witness the announced marriage ceremony of Miss Rose Hager and J. C. Whitmere, of Washington, D. C. When the groom appeared, however, he was summarily dismissed by the mother, who refused him an explanation or permission to see the young lady, who was at that time confined to her room, the key of which the mother kept in her pocket. After a short imprisonment Rose was released, in an apparently submissive and resigned state. In order to avert the annoyance occasioned by the mother's conduct the young lady on the following day was placed under the guardianship of her aunt for a trip to Williamsport, Md. The aunt and niece got as far as the depot, where Rose gave her the slip, boarded a train, arrived in this place, met her intended and was married by the Rev. C. W. Cremer the same day and left for Washington. The bride is a pretty brunette and a favorite in Hagerstown and this place and the groom is an enterprising young business man.

The President's Summer Plans.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The Star says the President is preparing to depart from Washington for a Summer vacation. His plans have been arranged, and it is expected that he will be able to get away within a day or two. He will go to New York state and betake himself to the woods for a week or two to get away from the worry and bother of the office seekers and politicians. His plans have been made very quietly and he will probably leave soon as the appointed time arrives without making any previous announcement. The President wants a period of perfect rest and does not propose to be followed into his retreat. The office seekers will wake up some morning very soon and find the White House deserted.

The State Teachers.

HARRISBURG, July 8.—The State Teachers' Association, at its session today, placed a number of names in nomination for officers for the ensuing year, and the election will take place to-morrow. The balance of the time was devoted to the discussion of topics. "The essentials of successful teaching" was handled by Dr. Moffat, of Washington and Jefferson College, while Dr. Ratherack, of the Pennsylvania University, read a paper on "The Relation of Forests to American Prosperity." A lecture by Colonel Russell H. Conwell, of Philadelphia, was delivered to-night. There are 448 teachers enrolled up to the present time.

The Indians.

TOPEKA, Kas., July 8.—The following dispatch was received this morning by the Governor from H. R. McKerson, division superintendent of the Topeka and Santa Fe railway. It was sent to McKerson by the station at Kingman: "The Indian scare assumed gigantic proportions here yesterday and last night. Hundreds of families flocked into town from points as far west as forty miles for protection. Several scouting parties have been out as far as thirty miles and the farther out they go the farther off Indians are. There is not a trace of an Indian or evidence of their having been nearer to Kingman county than the territory line and no damage is done there."

Bonaparte.

BALTIMORE, July 7.—The calmness of the Clerk's office of the City Circuit was disturbed to-day by a round at fisticuffs between Charles J. Bonaparte Jr., and C. C. Rhodes. The case which had been on trial was decided in favor of Rhodes and Mr. Bonaparte was counsel for the other side. Mr. Bonaparte made the remark that Rhodes had induced a Mrs. Plummer to assign her right to property when she did not know what she was doing. Rhodes made a reply which Mr. Bonaparte construed to mean that he had lied and forthwith dealt Rhodes a severe blow in the face. The result was a black eye for each before they were separated.

Cold Water in a Red Hot Boiler.

TITUSVILLE, Pa., July 8.—The boiler in Pratt & Bentley's shingle mill, 3 miles from this city, exploded this afternoon, instantly killing Fireman Elliott Alcon, seriously cutting and scalding Jacob Miller, William Longworthy and A. W. Massier. The mill was a total wreck. The explosion was terrific. The accident was caused by the fireman pumping cold water into an empty and red hot boiler. He had only worked in the mill five hours.

Fusion in Iowa.

DES MOINES, July 7.—The Greenback State Convention to-day adopted the plan of fusion agreed upon by the Democratic and Greenback State Committees some time ago, the Democrats to nominate a candidate for Governor and Judge of the Supreme Court and the Greenbackers a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor and Superintendent of Public Instruction. There was but very little opposition, and Gen. Weaver, who favored fusion, had an easy victory over Weller, who opposed it. E. H. Gillette, formerly member of Congress from this district, was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor, and F. W. Moore of Davis county for Superintendent of Public Instruction. There is no doubt that the Democratic Convention will approve this action. The platform adopted declares loudly for the introduction of the anti-monopoly sentiment in legislation, and denounces the Governor for turning State Auditor Brown out of office by the use of bayonets.

Vulcan Iron Works.

ST. LOUIS, July 9.—In the United States Circuit Court this morning an order was made by Judge Trent authorizing the receiver of the property of the Ore and Steel Company, better known as the Vulcan Iron Works, situated in South St. Louis, to lease the same to a syndicate of five gentlemen. The order provides that the lease shall run for six years, at an annual rental of $50,000, the lessees to have the right to use the Betsemer steel process. The lessees are A. M. Wilcox, of Cleveland; H. O. Bonnell, Henry Wick, T. H. Wells, L. E Cochrane, Richard Brown, all of Youngstown, O., and H. Wippert, of Terre Haute, Ind.

Cholera Stricken Spain.

LISBON, July 10.—A mysterious epidemic has broken out in this city and in various parts of Portugal. The victims are attacked without warning and die within a few minutes after siezure. The disease is a mystery to the doctors, who as yet have found no effective method of combating it.

MADRID, July 10.—The total number of cases of cholera reported from all points in Spain yesterday was 1,459, and of deaths 680. It is now hoped that Madrid will escape the scourge, as the disease is rapidly decreasing at Araninez.

Terrific Hail Stones.

LONG REACH, Mich., July 10.—A terrible ice storm passed over this section of country last night, going over the lake at Port Hope. Great damage has resulted to standing crops and even lives of men and animals were endangered. Hail stones from one to four inches in diameter beat out windows in the houses on the west side and otherwise damaged buildings. From a distance the storm looked like a cyclone. Credible eye-witnesses describe the storm as something terrific.

A Quiet Day for the General.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 8.—The warm, clear weather tempted General Grant out of doors this morning, and he spent nearly an hour sitting with Mrs. Grant on the veranda. Between 1 and 2 o'clock the General again took a seat on the piazza. A board was placed across the arms of his willow chair, and, using this as a desk, the sick man wrote for a considerable time. The day is passing quietly with him.

The Largest Slate Factory.

ALLENTOWN, July 7.—Preparations began to-day for putting up the machinery in the new factory at the quarries of the old Bangor Slate Company, now the Hyatt Slate Company. Machinery capable of turning out from 10,000 to 15,000 slates per day will be put in the building, making it the largest school slate factory in this country. It is expected to be in running order by August 1.

Lightning's Work.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 8.—A special to the Constitution from Grantville says that some days ago T. R. Ringham lost two mules by lightning. Hearing that he wish to replace them, John Rowe and Rufus Malcolme rode over with their stock, but failed to trade, and while returning home a single stroke of lightning killed both men and mules.

A Jail Delivery.

YORK, July 8.—Thomas Murray, James Manning, W. A. Barton, John Gibbons, and A. J. Davidson, long-term prisoners, escaped from the York County Jail about midnight last night. They sawed the bar of a window and after reaching the roof descended to the ground by means of a rope. None have as yet been recaptured.

$225,000 for Breach of Promise.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—Harriet Moore, a middle-aged widow, has instituted a suit for breach of promise against Moses Hopkins, aged 70 years, claiming damages of $225,000. The defendant is a brother of the late Mark Hopkins, the railroad magnate, from whom he inherited an estate valued at $6,000,000.

Conductors Reinstated.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Eleven of the sixteen conductors discharged by Superintendent Lake, of the West division street railway, and which caused the strike, were reinstated this morning, their cases having been investigated yesterday by President Jones. The case of the remainder will be investigated to-day.

A Fatal Swim.

SHENANDOAH, July 10.—Daniel Mallery, a boy aged 15 years, was drowned here this afternoon, and two others, Daniel Grow and Owen Gauham, narrowly escaped the same fate. The three boys went into a mine breach hole filled with water to bathe and Mallery cramped and sank.

Wolseley on the Soudan Evacuation.

LONDON, July 10.—A blue book has been issued on the evacuation of Dongola. General Wolseley had telegraphed as follows to Mr. Smith, the secretary of war. "There are some troops still in Dongola. There would be no difficulty in occupying the places evacuated. No frontier forces will suffice to arrest the mahdi if our retreat be continued. The mahdi will invade Egypt and we will then be compelled to fight him under the disadvantage of a possible rising of the Egyptians also, if a slight reverse happens. The mahdi must be smashed. A Khartoum campaign in the autumn would be certain of success."

A Pension for a Confederate.

At last that long-predicted event has really happened—a Confederate soldier has been placed on the pension roll by the Federal Government. Oddly enough, too, the responsibility for this action of the authorities at Washington in 1885 can be traced directly to a special order given by President Lincoln a little over twenty years ago. After compulsory military service was resorted to, States and districts often sought to save their own citizens from being drafted into the army by voting bounties to buy men wherever they could be found. The agent appointed by a county in one of the Middle States, who was supplied with the necessary bounty money, learning that some Confederate prisoners of war at Chicago were about to be released and enlisted in our army for service against the Indians in the Northwest. The thrifty thought occurred to the agent that he might pay these prisoners a bounty for doing what they were going to do without any pay at all, and in return have them credited to his county as soldiers furnished by it to the Union army for service against the Confederacy. The agent was an acquaintance of Lincoln, and obtained from him an order to have the men credited as desired. Secretary Stanton refused to allow the credits. The agent returned to the President, who reiterated the order, but again without effect. Mr. Lincoln then went in person to Stanton's office. General Fry was called in by Stanton to state the facts in the case—that these men already belonged to the United States, being prisoners of war; that they could not be used against the Confederates; that they had no relation whatever to the county to which it was proposed they should be credited; that all that was necessary toward enlisting them in our army for Indian service was the Government's release of them as prisoners of war; that to give them bounty and credit them to a county which owed some of its own men for service against the Confederates would waste money and deprive the army operating against a powerful enemy of of that number of men, etc. After he concluded, Stanton remarked that Lincoln must see, in view of such facts, that his order could not be executed. What followed is thus related by General Fry.

Lincoln sat upon a sofa with his legs crossed, and did not say a word until the Secretary's last remark. Then he said in a somewhat positive tone: "Mr. Secretary, I reckon you'll have to execute the order." Stanton replied with asperity: "Mr. President, I cannot do it. The order is an improper one, and I cannot execute it." Lincoln fixed his eye upon Stanton, and in a firm voice and with an accent that clearly showed its determination, he said: "Mr. Secretary, it will have to be done." Stanton then realized that he was overmatched. He had made a square issue with the President and had been defeated, notwithstanding the fact that he was in the right. Upon an intimation from him I withdrew, and did not witness his surrender. A few minutes after I reached my office I received instructions from the Secretary to carry out the President's order.

Such is General Fry's story. By a remarkable coincidence a confirmation of its truth and an illustration of its singular sequel come hard upon its publication. In an Atlanta contemporary just received we find copied from the local paper published at Jonesboro, Clayton county, an "item" stating that Brooks Thomas, of that county, had just received a postal card from Washington announcing that his pension claim had been favorably passed upon, and that the money would be forwarded in a few days. "Mr. Thomas," says the Jonesboro paper, "was a brave and good Confederate soldier, and during the war was captured and placed in prison. He saw to stay in prison would result in death, so he took the oath of allegiance and was sent to the Northwest plains to fight the Indians. Soon he became sick and remained in the hospital until the end of the war. Mr. Thomas will draw $90 per year for each year since the war. Principal and interest will amount to about $3000, besides a pension of $90 a year during his or his wife's lifetime, and he is also entitled to a land bounty of a lot of land." There would seem to be no question that Thomas is one of the very party referred to by General Fry, as to whom the controversy between Lincoln and Stanton arose, and that he owes his pension to the personal act of Lincoln himself. That two bits of war history which fit together so exactly should come out simultaneously is as extraordinary as it is interesting. General Fry might well follow the matter up a step further by letting the country know what particular "county in one of the Middle States" Thomas represents on the pension roll, and how many men there are who are entitled to what may be called these special Lincoln pensions. —N. Y. Evening Post.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—Now comes the gentle graduate
Her feelings to express;
And prates of "wise economy,"
In a hundred dollar dress.
And she talks of foolish "fashions,"
As with ring and ear drops toys,
Of the modesty that maidens should have
As she smileth at the boys.

—Now put on your lawn dresses and white suits—if you have them.

—Maud S, the celebrated trotting mare, was taken through Altoona on her way to Cleveland, Thursday.

—The market Tuesday morning, the 7th, was the largest of the present season. Many bushels of cherries were for sale.

—The storm of thunder, lightning and rain on Thursday evening, while somewhat frightful, was very welcome.

—The large water tank near the round house is completed and painted a dark red color. It is quite a handsome structure.

—Henry Stiffler, aged 80 years, a respected citizen of Bedford township, Bedford county, died on Thursday, the 3d, of paralysis.

—Jacob C. Horner, of Johnstown, was relieved of $2500 during the presence of O'Brien's circus in that place Wednesday, the 8th.

—One night recently rats killed one hundred and fifty young chickens for Mr. Thomas Hamil, of Licking Creek township, Fulton county.

—The case of Curtin McClain, in jail at Lewistown for the murder of William Smearman, will come before the board of pardons on the 21st inst.

—The dry goods stores should close early in the evening, as people cannot buy dry goods after dark, and keeping the stores open is a needless expense.

—The result of a recent game of base ball between the best nines in Lock Haven and Tyrone, in the former place, was 26 to 1 in favor of Lock Haven.

—The large iron girder has been put up at the corner of Bunnell & Aikens' substantial new business block on Allegheny and Bishop streets.

—We like the pale tints best in ladies' dresses. Yellow, blue, pink shades of thin goods are prettiest. The same rule holds good in regard to feathers on hats.

—Nesbit Bistline, of Andersonburg, Perry county, was thrown from a horse on Friday evening, the 3d, and had his collar bone broken and suffered other injuries.

—A horse belonging to the Williamsport fire department is changing from a perfect black color to a dark chestnut. Wonder if it was not painted when purchased?

—In Tyrone and Altoona on Thursday the mercury marked 97° in the shade. So Bellefonte was not quite so torrid as the two places mentioned, it being only 95° here.

—Charley Valentine's horse indulged in a little run on Wednesday, but when reaching a certain house on High St. the animal became subdued and Meek and stopped to cool off.

—Very neat and attractive are the little phamplets containing the proceedings of the two last annual commencement exercises of Pierce's College of Business, in Philadelphia. The one for 1885 is particularly elegant.

—The horse, mule and hog are not allowed to run at large in the borough of Milesburg, but the highway cow is given the freedom of the place. Neither is anyone permitted to kindle a bonfire or explode a fire-cracker in the town.

—A son of Mr. John Lutz who is occupying one of Reynolds' farms up Buffalo Run, was seriously hurt in a reaper on Wednesday. We learn that the horses run away, throwing the boy in such a position as to cause the injuries.

—A man in this place Wednesday afternoon amused such spectators as had time to stop and look at him by passing through a hoop with a glass of water balanced on his forehead. He did it successfully without allowing a drop of water to escape from the glass.

—We saw a slightly novel hat on a Bellefonte lady, on Wednesday. The lady who wore it was beneath the medium height. The hat was an immense black sundown. The only trimming that was particularly noticeable consisted of three sun-flowers on the left side, pretty well toward the rear. These large flowers would not have looked well on a small hat, but were the proper size for such a large one.

Where the National Guard Trophies Will Go.

The contest for the National Guard trophies is ended, at least, for the present year. The following communication from Brigade Inspector, Major James P. Sayre, will show that Company D, of Altoona, won the handsomest and most valuable trophy—the badge of honor—and that Company B came within one of getting it.

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 29, 1885.

COL. D. H. HASTINGS, Commanding Fifth Regiment, N. G. P.—Colonel: I have the honor to inform you that I have completed the inspection of the several companies of your regiment, and that they are entitled to grade as follows, to wit:

First Company D; Second Company B, Company G; Third Company I; Fourth Company C; Fifth Company F; Sixth Company H; Seventh Company A.

The contest between companies B and G was to close to decide; Captains Mullen and Elder certainly did well. B company excelled in military bearing and discipline. G company excelled in equipments, bayonet exercise and skirmish drill. I company excelled in cleanliness of muskets. C company excelled in daylight attendance, and is improving very rapidly. F company excelled in skirmish drill, but fell behind in members. H company has improved in discipline. A company was without arms, but will certainly make a superior company. Your non-commissioned officers and privates are catching the inspiration. May constant labor be your watchword and success your lot. I am, colonel, very respectfully,

JAMES P. SAYER,
Major and Inspector Second Brigade, N. G. P.

Company I will be entitled to the marksmanship badge during the present year, when it will again be contested for. The captain of Company I is James F. Mickel, who will wear the badge. General Orders Number 5, signed by Col. D. H. Hastings and countersigned by Adjutant H. S. Hale, affords the agreeable information that "the Fifth regiment has taken the highest rating in the brigade in the inspection" and the "officers and men are earnestly enjoined to redouble their efforts for a successful tour of duty at Camp Gallagher."

Major A. S. Stayer is appointed regimental surgeon vice George F. Harris, resigned.

Company B has our congratulation on securing the second best general average of any company in the regiment, and Captain Mullen, who is one of the most capable officers in the National Guard, has reason to be proud of the boys under his command.

Running and Walking as a Science.

There are not many people who want to run or walk very fast in mid-summer, but a professional runner who called at the REPUBLICAN office Thursday morning astonished us by saying that he would rather run in warm weather than in cold. This is a Mr. Gilford, of Lock Haven, who in his racing contests enters under the cognomen of "Wild Bill." He was at the rink at Eagleville on the Fourth of July and was one of the attractive features. The following shows the time he made:

The score in walking at the Niagara rink on July 4th was 20 miles in 2 hours and 27 minutes. The run of 15 miles was made in 1 hour and 22½ minutes. A. B. FREEMAN, Manager.
JAMES MASON, Judge.

"Wild Bill" proposes to give Bellefonte people an opportunity to see how fast he can run and walk if he can make arrangements to hire the Rink. He will probably have to run on time as it is not likely that he can get anyone to race with him.

—It is hot work down at the Nail Works just now, but the great industry is running along more lively than ever before. Then there is such a deafening noise in the room where the nail machines are located that people just think—they dont attempt to talk. But it is interesting to watch those noisy machines all running so regularly, making so many nails of all sizes every second of time. Some of the machines are self-feeding and one boy can attend to three or four. The smoothness, regularity and evident success with which this constantly-growing industry is conducted suggests wise management at its head. While in that vicinity on Wednesday we noticed that the new bridge across the old canal bed opposite the works, is being built and when finished will be an additional convenience.

—On the Fourth of July, the Centennial of Lewisburg; the Saturday News of that town, assisted in painting the town red by issuing a Centennial edition printed in carmine ink outside and giving it an air of intense patriotism by using blue ink for the inside pages. The most striking feature of the paper is the portrait of the editor and publisher, B. K. Focht. He is a real handsome young man with a kissable mustache and it surprises us some, for we thought that Bellefonte had a monopoly of the handsome newspaper men of this vicinity.

—It is rumored that Bellefonte is to have another circus.

Houtzdale.

The business people of this place complain of dull times, although to a visitor it has the appearance of considerable life and activity. The streets are thronged with pedestrians of all nationalities from early morn, until dewy eve.

The town has improved greatly in appearance during the past two years. Improvements have been made this year on Good street in the way of new gutters, crossings and sidewalks. Several new stores have been erected, also some new dwelling houses. One of the changes of greatest importance to the citizens of this place is the changing of the depot from a second class to a first class station. That little per cent. which has been pocketed by the Liverites has been done away with.

Miss Mertie Smith, of Bellefonte, is visiting her friend, Miss May Wooden.

Mr. John Campbell, formerly of Bellefonte, is comfortably located in a new house on Marys street.

Mr. C. A. Lindsey is prospering, and as evidence, he is erecting himself a new home, which, in our estimation will be, when completed, the handsomest residence in Houtzdale. It has a delightful location, situated on Quality hill, on the corner of Good and Marys streets, and commands a view of the entire town and surroundings.

Mr. Nixon, editor of the Houtzdale Observer, has a very nice office in a new building situated in the central part of town. Mr. Nixon is an energetic and fearless journalist in the interests of the people of his community.

A party of young people from Houtzdale picniced about three miles above Janesville on Thursday. In the evening the gathering took the form of a lawn party, and they were very hospitably entertained at the pleasant home of Dr. Edwards.

Items Written on Friday.

Bellefonte has a good supply of pretty young lady guests.

Despite the drenching rain Thursday evening, the lawn sprinkler was at work Friday morning.

Beautiful sod is being put down along the terrace back of Major Reynolds' new residence.

On Sunday, the 5th, Tyrone had the "severest rain storm of the season" and Thursday evening brought the place the "severest wind storm of the season." The elements seem to be treating our sister burg quite severely.

With what wonderful calmness and good-feeling our friend, Mr. Joe Furey, takes his defeat in the attempt to get the post-office. Wonder if he feels just as he writes.

Mrs. John P. Harris gave a party on Thursday for her daughters, Misses Emma and Edith. About thirty young people were present and the occasion was enjoyable.

General Beaver.

Interview in the Phila. Times, of Thursday.

"Quay has deserved well of the Republican party," said Gen. Beaver at the Continental Hotel yesterday, "and he will be elected by an overwhelming majority. The party is united today, as I predicted it would be. There are no Independents any more and Quay has been a faithful worker for the party. The nomination is simply a recognition of his valuable services to the party, which will be indorsed at the polls. Is he my choice? Of course. The nominee of the party is always my choice, and in this instance the party has chosen wisely. The last Gobernatorial contest has drawn the party lines closer, as shown by the vote last fall. I was slaughtered, but the party gained in strength and I do not regret it, but am ready for service at its call."

—Somebody connected with the editorial staff of the Centre Hall Reporter writes us to know which end of the knife to put in the mouth when eating. The handle is the proper end, dear Reporter, as the other end might cut your mouth. When not eating either end will do. When you sit at a Republican's table, however, you will find a four-pronged silver instrument lying near your knife to be used for the purpose of eating. It is called a fork.

—Dull as the times seem to be, they are lively enough at the law office of the Dale Brothers. There is as much dust left on the office floor by these throngs of clients as can be found in the Court House after a Democratic county convention. Al. sweept it out Friday morning and such a cloud of it arose in the air to greet the rising sun that some people thought a cyclone was approaching.

—Many of the neighboring cities and large towns have regular evening band concerts once or twice a week, the band executing choice music in the open air. Such public entertainment might be enjoyable in Bellefonte.

Phillipsburg Again.

Our old friend, H. B. Stine, who does business for Stern, Brinton & Co., in this city, spent the Fourth in Buffalo Run and Bellefonte. He says he never ate so many cherries in so short a time before.

Harry Martin, of the Ledger, is visiting in Maryland this week.

Henry Schlitter, of barber fame, sailed for Germany on Tuesday of this week.

Our skating rink will, we understand, be opened one evening a week hereafter.

A delightful rain visited this section on Thursday evening, livening up vegetation in general. It was badly needed.

The Hope Hose Company, of Lock Haven, present a handsome appearance in a parade.

Harry Stewart had a valuable horse die very suddenly a few days since.

It is estimated that five thousand people were in this place on the Fourth.

Mr. D. H. Bair, popular clerk in G. Lyon & Co.'s store, was in your city yesterday on a business trip. Mr. William Lehman was there likewise.

Our old and popular postmaster, John Gowland, still holds the fort. He is as good a man as we could wish.

Mr. J. H. Hollingger, of Tyrone, was in this city on Thursday.

Philipsburg now has a first-class gun-smith shop. Mr. W. M. Loyd is the proprietor.

Mr. J. M. Craig, wife and three children, of Saxton, Bedford county, spent a few days this week visiting Mr. Brown. Mr. C. is an engineer on the H. and B. railroad.

It is reported that W. W. Cole's circus will pitch its tents in this city in the near future. Hope it is true.

Cherries and eggs are scarce in this market. SOME ONE.

How to Sell New Potatoes.

Editor W. W. Dunmire tells his readers in the Altoona Evening Independent how to sell a crop of new potatoes at the best advantage. To get the best price, he says, they must be in the market as soon as possible; a week will give one an opportunity of disposing of a whole crop before a competitor can bring in his produce and the prices fall. New potatoes are easily damaged; the skin slips readily, and this spoils their appearance, and of course their value. The use of a convenient package for the potatoes, in which they can be handled and carried to the consumer, brings them to him in the nicest possible shape. Purchasers like to see nice packages, and are pleased to know when they contain full measure. A splint basket makes an excellent package, but it is not economical of room, and one basket cannot be set upon another without rubbing the potatoes. If the baskets are made square, with straight sides, they are better. But a wooden box is more durable and convenient. It should be sixteen inches long, thirteen and one quarter inches wide, and thirteen inches deep; this makes one heaped bushel when the box is level full, containing two thousand seven hundred and fifty-two cubic inches. Such boxes lie close together in a wagon box and no space is lost.

—Mr. Irv. Speer, the faithful assistant of Mr. Ed Kitzmiller in the "Hello" establishment known as the Telephone Exchange is the most obliging young gentleman in the profession. He, on Friday, made a purchase of a guitar upon which he proposes to perform choice music between the hours of 6:30 and 7:30 every morning. All that is necessary for telephone subscribers who desire to enjoy the entertaining strains which emanate from this sweet-toned instrument is to call the Exchange and and apply their ear to the phone. If specially requested to do so Irv will use the instrument as an accompaniment to his patented brass band voice and will sing the popular music of the day. This is an advantage which no other telephone service in America gives its subscribers and is probably in recognition of the fact that Bellefonte is the champion telephone centre of the world. The young ladies connected with the Exchange cannot perform on the guitar, but they can sing almost as well as Irv.

—The people of the town of Indiana, Pa., are greatly alarmed lest the place may be burned by Jack Sackett who has just finished a term of imprisonment. Sackett is a desperate character, and threatens to burn the town in revenge for having been sent to the penitentiary for a burglary. There have been half a dozen incendiary fires of late which have been attributed to Sackett, and the people now go armed and have organized night patrols and vigilance committees.

—The new postmaster, Dr. Dobbins, says he will not go inside to look through the letter delivery until about the 1st of next month.

Select Excursion to the Seashore.

The second select excursion to the Jersey coast via the Pennsylvania Railroad will leave Pittsburg at 9:00 a. m., Thursday, July 23d, by special train. The great popularity of these excursions during last season, and its renewal as evidenced by the success of the first one this summer, proves that the people of this section thoroughly appreciate the enterprise of the road in thus providing cheap and rapid transportation to the seashore. The season at the seaside will be at its height, and the numberless modes of amusement and recreation may be enjoyed to the best advantage. The fishing, sailing and bathing facilities at Cape May and Atlantic City are unsurpassed, and their arrangements for festivities offer all that can be desired in this direction. Ample accommodations can be secured at both places. Excursion tickets, good for 10 days, will be sold from the following points at the rates quoted: Pittsburg, Irwin, Greensburg, Uniontown, Connellsville, Latrobe, Blairsville, Indiana, $10.00; Johnstown, $9.25; Cresson, $8.50; Altoona, $8.00; Tyrone, $8.65; Huntingdon, $7.10; Cumberland, $8.00; Bedford, $8.50; Mt. Union, $6.75; McVeytown, $6.50; Lewistown Junction, $6.00; Mifflin, $5.65; Newport, $5.00.

—Be cleanly. It is the only way to be comfortable in warm weather. Everybody who has sufficient time and strength to work can be cleanly. What a difference between a clean house and a dirty one! The former is cool, free from flies and the air is pure and invigorating. It is delightful to eat, live and sleep in such a place. But the uncleanly house is a rendezvous for flies, a favorite place for hot, foul air, as uncomfortable an abode as can be found. Those who live in such a house, of course, feel the heat much more than others.

—The Bellefonte, Nittany and Lemont railroad, now entirely completed, will be used for travel and freight about the 1st of August. It is about decided that the entire road from Bellefonte to Montandon will be put under the superintendency of E. B. Westfall, and special efforts will be made to accommodate local traffic between this place and Spring Mills. Trains will be put on to run both ways between the two places both morning and evening.

—The financial statement of the Bellefonte school district is posted in conspicuous places. We notice that the words "if any" occur after nearly every item of receipts and expenditures. For instance, it says the total debt, if any is $26,000. In this instance we are glad the words "if any" occur as they may be interpreted to mean that perhaps there is no debt at all.

—Centre Hall wants the opening of the new railroad to be celebrated with a grand picnic to be held in one of the groves in that place, and to be attended by thousands from each direction, from both Union and Centre counties. Well, we do believe that would be a good plan and if the picnic is held Bellefonte will be well represented.

—What a comparatively important station this seems to be! Thursday morning, for instance, almost everybody on the 9:32 mail east alighted here and for a minute or two there was hardly anybody in the cars. But an equal number entered the cars here and the rush of travelers went on their respective ways again.

—On Thursday, Mr. Aaron Goldsmith went fishing for trout up Spring creek and brought home seven beauties. One of them measured more than 12 inches in length. The seven weighed two pounds and doubtless made a tempting dish for supper when partaken of by the Goldsmiths, aided by "the infant."

—One crop grows as rapidly and luxuriantly as it ever did before, and that is the weeds. In fields where the grass is parched and yellow, where even the trees seem to be struggling for life, the weeds can be found growing to a great height and blossoming gorgeously.

—Isaac Reish, who lives in Nittany Valley, hung his vest up the other day with $60 in the pocket of it. When he took the vest down again the $60 had disappeared from the pocket and is now probably resting in the pocket of some other fellow's vest.

—The thunder storm which raged at Lock Haven on Thursday evening was quite terrific and a log barn owned by Benjamin Baird, near that city, was struck by lightning and burned with all its contents, including a valuable team of horses.

—Company B now meets Tuesday and Friday evenings of each week for drill.

Brevities.

—Cherries are abundant and cheap.

—Boys spend much of their time fishing.

—How fast the grass has grown since the rain of Thursday.

—There is a letter in the post-office addressed "Buffalo Creamery, Centre Co., Pa."

—"Wild Bill" is walking and running for the entertainment of Bellefonters.

—Peter Herdic is at work giving the people of Huntingdon plenty of pure, cheap water.

—Mr. and Mrs John Ardell, Jr., entertained quite a large number of their young friends on Friday evening, the gathering being in honor of Miss Dayton, daughter of J. E. Dayton, of Williamsport, who is now their guest.

—From the Altoona Times: James Chudleigh, of Centre county, issues a challenge in the cultivation of fruits and vegetables, open to any person in Centre or Clearfield counties. Chudleigh is in his seventieth year and tills the farm four miles south of Philipsburg, on the Tyrone pike, owned by John J. Tuigg. He offers a prize of $75.

—A goodly number of people availed themselves of an opportunity on Friday afternoon to ride to Lemont over the new railroad. Mr. Jerry Nolan, the engineer, and Harry Thompson, fireman, who are always pleasant and accomodating, were compelled to put up with numerous inconveniences for the sake of making the ladies comfortable. The scenery along the way is very pretty and picturesque, and the sensation of speeding along behind the iron horse through a country which heretofore never resounded to his reverberating tones was novel. In spite of showers of cinder and dust, it was a very pleasant trip.

—See a woman in another column, near Speer's Vineyards picking grapes from which Speer's Port Grape Wine is made, that is so highly esteemed by the medical profession, for the use of invalids, weakly persons and the aged. Sold by druggists. 16 30 1y

—The festive grasshopper is appearing quite numerously, although his first cousin, the 17-year locust, is not yet visible in this section.

—They are fortunate who can stop for awhile from their work and take a trip to the sea shore, breathing in the refreshing air and bathing in the bounding billow.

—Warwick McCray, a young cadet at West Point whose home is in Uniontown, this State, was drowned in the river on Monday. He was a promising young man whose death causes much sorrow.

—The vines which adorn the handsome brick residence of Mr. William Jenkins on Linn street, are trained to exquisite loveliness, and by their freshness and beauty lend to the place a delightful charm.

—The old soldiers reunion, long talked of, will be held in Clearfield in September. The reunion will embrace the counties of Cambria, Blair, Centre, Cameron, Elk, Jefferson and Indiana.—Curwensville Review.

—A pun from the Williamsport Banner: "The tendency to do wrong increases towards night," says a Williamsport clergyman. This is very likely to be true, for when Adam ate the forbidden fruit it was near Eve.

—The Good Templar Lodge will not meet this evening, the regular meeting being postponed until Thursday evening. This is to give place to the meeting for young men to be conducted by Mr. Taggart this evening.

—The bear at the Bush House gave an out door exhibition on High street, Monday. It is said that there is also a ground hog in connection with the same hotel which is in training for a similar purpose and will be a rival of Bruin's.

—It is said that tramps bathe in the reservoir from whence Altoona receives its fresh water supply. Ugh! we hope no such calamity happens to the Bellefonte reservoir. Station a watchman with a big revolver up there, quick.

—At Selinsgrove, on Friday, a miner had his eyes blown out by the explosion of a blast. At Pleasant Mills, a village seven miles from Selinsgrove, a man named Wenrich crawled under a wheat shock during a thunder storm. The wheat shock was struck by lightning and the man instantly killed.

—A foot race of 50 yards between Charlie Heisler and Billie Haas, near the Fair Ground, for $50 a side, on Saturday afternoon, was won by Charlie by about 6 inches. Billie wants to run the race over again next Saturday for the same sum of money in front of the Brockerhoff House. If Charlie accepts of this Billie will furnish the Zion band for the occasion. Charlie says he will not accept, however, unless McMillen erects the band stand.

—Mrs. Irwin, of Clearfield, mother of Mr. James P. Irwin, formerly of this place and now of Snow Shoe, was found dead in her bed on Sunday morning. The lady was in her usual health on the previous day and her sudden death will be a shock to all who knew her. She is the mother of the Misses Irwin who are operators in the Telephone Exchange in that place. The deceased lady has numerous friends and relatives in Centre county, to all of whom we extend our sympathy.

Disastrous Fire at Eagleville.

On Sunday morning, at about half past 4 o'clock, a fire started in the hotel at Eagleville, this county, owned by Mr. A. M. Freeman. The fire started in a room on the second floor and spread with great rapidity. The family of Mr. Freeman and the guests at the hotel were awakened and had to rush from the building, saving nothing, and only escaping with their lives.

From the hotel, the fire communicated with the Niagara skating rink, which was also entirely destroyed. Mr. Freeman also owned the rink.

A small dwelling house near the hotel was entirely destroyed. It was owned by the Widow Gardner.

The hotel building was insured for $1800 and the furniture which it contained for $800. We understand that there was no insurance on either the rink or Mrs. Gardner's house.

The fire was the work of an incendiary and Mr. Freeman offers a reward of $100 for the detection and apprehension of the villian who was guilty of the terrible deed.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF THE FIRE.

Since the above was put in type, we learn from a gentleman who saw Mr. Freeman in Bellefonte on Monday that the dwelling house of the Widow Gardner, although in danger, was not burned. This gentleman also understands Mr. Freeman's insurance on the hotel and contents to be $1800, of which $1000 was on the building and $800 on furniture.

The fire started, the gentleman informs us, on the outside of the lower story of the house, about fifty feet away from any place that fire had been during the previous day. He says that Mr. Freeman will rebuild at once. The first account was obtained by telephone from Lock Haven and the second by a gentleman who had personally conversed with the owner. The latter is most probably nearest correct.

—Notwithstanding the rain, there was a market Tuesday morning where all the necessities and many of the luxuries of the season could be obtained. Berries of all grades of excellence and price were plentiful. One gentleman whose name is Long had fine huckleberries for 8 cents per quart, but he was kept busy selling them and so long as any remained from 20 to 25 people stood around him with baskets to be served. He remarked that he knew where there are 10,000 bushels of similar berries if there is anybody who wants to gather them. Another man had strawberries for 20 and 15 cents per quart and real nice cultivated red and black raspberries, which we didn't price. So far as we have observed this summer, the cultivated raspberries are the only ones that are fit to eat. Then there were the usual supplies of butter, eggs, beans, lettuce, etc.

—The information was received in Bellefonte on Sunday that a very sad accident occurred in Ithaca, New York, on Saturday, which resulted in the death of Mrs. Henry Sage, mother of Mr. William Sage, of that place. Mr. William Sage is a son-in-law of ex-Governor Curtin and the telegram was received by the Governor's family. It appears that Mrs. Sage with her sister and other members of the family were out riding when the horses ran away, throwing them out. Mrs. Sage was instantly killed and her sister was slightly injured. No other intelligence except that the funeral of Mrs. Sage was to be held on Tuesday, have been received.

—Rev. Wm. E. Hoy, of Mifflinburg, Pa., missionary-elect to Japan, will preach in the Reformed church of this place on next Sunday morning and evening. Mr. Hoy graduated last spring in the Theological Seminary in Lancaster, Pa., and was licensed to preach the Gospel at the recent meeting of West Susquehanna classis in the city of Williamsport, Pa. He has consecrated himself to the work of foreign missions and expects to sail for Japan, his chosen field, sometime during the coming fall. Everybody is invited to come, see, and hear him in the Reformed church on next Sunday morning and evening.

—Our collector, Mr. Chas. L. Gates, is now absent from town on a canvassing and collecting trip. He will go to Philipsburg, Snow Shoe, Moshannon, Sandy Ridge, Powelton, Pine Glen, Morrisdale Mines, etc. Those who happen to have any spare cash about them cannot do better than to give it to him, just to see how pleased he will look and how quickly his fingers will close over it. Then if anyone wants to subscribe for either or both of the two best papers in Centre county, he will be pleased to take your name for the Daily News or the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN.

—The State fair will begin in Philadelphia on September 23. Premiums aggregating $41,500 have been offered.

Rules for Teachers.

The teachers of the State have been meeting in Harrisburg this week and talked a good bit about temperance, tobacco, etc. Dr. E. E. Higbee, superintendent of public instruction, was there and gave the teachers valuable advice as to the proper way to conduct the new branch of study. A resolution was offered by Prof. Maris declaring it to be the opinion of the convention that "all teachers should fell it their duty to abstain from the use of tobacco in any form." On this subject, Miss Elizabeth Lloyd, of Swarthmore College, said:

"If the teaching of physiology in the schools is different from the life of teachers, if the teacher teaches in his school that alcohol and tobacco are injurious, and then the child looks around and sees the preacher and the doctor and the teacher all using these articles, he will not be much impressed with the teaching he has received."

Now, it seems to us that this sort of advice will suit the lady teachers of Bellefonte very nicely, but perhaps the gentlemen teachers will hesitate to give up their cigar.

The teachers protested against the railroad companies compelling them to pay higher fare than was paid by the politicians who attended the State Convention. This was quite right, too, for all should be compelled to pay the same.

—Mr. George Potter, the retiring 1st Lieutenant of Company B, N. G., was on Friday evening presented with a handsomely engrossed copy of resolutions passed by the company and referring to the high appreciation in which he had been held by the company. The resolutions are in a neat frame. They were presented in a speech by Col. D. H. Hastings, his speech being graceful and appropriate. Mr. Potter responded in a feeling and pleasing style. About twenty-five members of the company were present and the occasion was decidedly successful. It should be further added that the engrossing of the resolutions was the work of Corporal C. P. Hilder, who is an artist of merit. Interest was given to the occasion by the first appearance in his new uniform of 2d Lieutenant W. F. Reber.

—Persons who visit cemeteries should read the following law carefully: "That any person or persons, who shall willfully and maliciously destroy, mutilate, injure, pluck off, deface or remove therefrom a tree, vines, flowers or ornamental shrubbery, growing, being or temporarily placed therein for ornamental or useful purposes in any cemetery or graveyard in this Commonwealth used for the interment of human being or shall willfully trespass in and upon inclosures in any cemetery or graveyard aforesaid, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction of any of aforesaid offenses be sentenced to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding one year, or to pay a fine of not exceeding one hundred dollars or both, or either at the discretion of the court."

—Governor Pattison has again distinguished (?) himself by his veto of the bill providing for the establishment and operation of a scientific agricultural experiment station at State College and providing the means therefore. In his veto, he says: "The history of the State College is not such as to induce me to look with favor upon any legislation having in view the expenditure of more money upon it, or the enlargement of its field of operation." It is strange that the Governor arrays himself so positively in opposition to education for farmers' sons and daughters. If he had taken time to attend the recent commencement exercises of the College he might have had more enlightened views on the subject.

—Friday morning about 10 o'clock, says the Altoona Times, Jacob Carl, a teamster whose home is at McKees Gap, this county, was driving down the mountain at that place, with a heavy load of stone, probably seventy hundred weight, his lock chain broke, and the horses being unable to hold the weight were forced to run. After going a short distance at great speed, the saddle horse fell down and was struck by the wagon. The other horse got loose at the same time and escaped injury. The back of the saddle horse was broken and it died soon after the accident. The animal was a valuable one, and will prove a great loss to Mr. Carl, who depends upon the work of his team for a livelihood.

—The school board met on Tuesday evening and re-elected Prof. D. O. Etters principal of the High School and Miss Elma M. Read, of Clearfield, assistant principal. J. M. Keichline, Esq., was re-elected tax collector, and Mr. Hoffman janitor. The election of a teacher for the colored school was indefinitely postponed.

A Sunday Morning Visitor.

On Sunday morning at about half-past 2 o'clock Major Wm. F. Reynolds was quietly and soundly sleeping. All the members of the family gathered in that magnificent stone mansion were also in the same blissful condition. There is some undefinable sensation which causes even a sleeper to become aware of the proximity of any unusual object. The Major opened his eyes. There was a dim light burning in his room. It was sufficiently bright for the suddenly-aroused sleeper to become aware that a man was at his bedside; that the man was stooping over him with his ear close to his face, evidently trying to discover if his sleep was sound. When the Major moved, the man started away. The Major jumped from the bed and ran through the hallway after the intruder. But the would-be robber was quick and before an alarm could be given he had escaped through a rear window onto the porch roof and thence to the ground.

Nothing was taken. The man had evidently determined to discover if the coast was clear before plundering the mansion, and when the Major fixed his eyes on him the fellow concluded that flight was most advisable under the circumstances.

—A citizen of this town who believes that Bellefonte should have a steamer to be used in the event of fire informed us the other day that he chanced to learn of a second hand steamer that is as good as new and can be purchased at a bargain. It is an Amoskeag steamer and the price asked is $1400. The fire company who have it for sale have come into possession of a fine new steamer and want to dispose of the old one. The gentleman informed us of the fact and represented to us the value of such a fire appliance in the suburbs where the water mains do not extend and where there are consequently no fire plugs to attach to. We informed him that we knew to a certainty that the borough was not in financial condition nor disposition to make such a purchase at present, and he believes that the citizens who have the money and are more directly interested should purchase it. We submit this proposition for the benefit of all interested citizens and will leave them to act in the matter as they choose. If they want any further information on the subject Mr. Wash Rees can tell them all about it.

—One of Bellefonte's favorite highway cows had an unusually appetizing breakfast last Monday. "Sukey" chanced to see a luscious watermelon in an accessible position in front of the green grocery in McCafferty's building on West High street and before the proprietor was aware of it she had sunk her teeth deep into its juicy contents. Some of the depot men and train employes saw the cow at her feast and when a boy was about to drive her away their sympathy for the hungry cow overcame their compassion for the proprietor and they warned the boy to desist. Still the cow munched away until a man, who concluded that the cow had enough of a good thing, informed the proprietor. But it was then too late to save the melon and the cow is the gainer by her early morning hunt for a breakfast.

—In less than two weeks from the present date Company B will go into camp at Conneaut Lake with the rest of the Second Bigade, N. G. The discipline at these encampments is constantly becoming more strict and this year a larger and fuller attendance than ever before will be required. No man will be excused except upon the plea of illness, accompanied by a physician's certificate of the fact. As every man is required to be in camp by the evening of the 24th, Company B, will probably start on the morning of that day, reaching Pittsburg about noon and thence going direct to Camp Gallagher. A detachment of soldiers will go in advance of the company to prepare the camp for their reception.

—Rev. Mr. Robinson officiated in the Episcopal church on Sunday, and there were large congregations both morning and evening. Miss Kate Jackson and other ladies endowed with a rare taste for the beautiful had procured very handsome bouquets of rhododendrons which ornmented the font, the pulpit desk, the altar, the steam heat radiators and every other available place. Nothing can surpass the beauty of these blossoms or the gracefulness of the leaves. During the Sunday-school service in the afternoon two infants and a little boy received the sacrament of baptism.

—The awning in front of the drug store and grocery store in the Bush House and the balcony over the hotel entrance have been removed. We understand that a new awning will be put up in front of the stores and the balcony will be extended all the way along to the eastern end of the hotel,

Miss Mary Gephart, one of Bellefonte's particularly vivacious young ladies, returned from a visit to Philipsburg on Wednesday. That town is particularly lonesome and dreary since she left it—at least, that's what the young gentlemen say.

Mrs. J. G. Love is by this time on a trip "up the Hudson," that most delightful of all American excursions. She went to Lock Haven a few days ago to join her sister, Mrs. Dunn, and her mother, Mrs. Fisk, and the three ladies are traveling together.

Dr. George Atherton, the accomplished President of the State College, is attending a convention of representatives of agricultural colleges and experiment stations at Washington, D. C., and was chosen one of the five vice-presidents of the convention.

Two charming young ladies from Philadelphia, the Misses Mary S. and Annie L. Lark, arrived on Thursday evening and are guests of Dr. A. W. Hafer and family on Reynolds' Avenue. Miss Mary Lark's name suits her unusually well as she is a fine musician and both are as happy as larks.

Lieut. James Leyden, it is said, is off for a visit to Europe and will go as ar east as Constantinople. Perhaps Minister Cox will be able to secure the Lieutenant an audience with the Sultan and—who knows?—perhaps that monarch will invite the handsome young soldier to take charge of an expedition against the Soudan.

Hiram Torrey, Esq., who is now located in New York City, was in Bellefonte Friday and will remain in this vicinity several days. He is a very agreeable and highly intelligent gentleman of great business ability and a strong and pleasing writer, letters written by him from New York and other places having frequently appeared in this paper. He has also written editorials on interesting and timely topics which we have been permitted to publish and we are sure that our readers who have read his productions already feel well acquainted with him. He has relatives at State College and we hope he will spend the mid-summer vacation agreeably among his friends in old Centre.
